ALUMNAE EDITION

OUTSTANDING ALUMNAE AWARDS HONOR FARINHOLT, ROACH, STUKES

by Laurie K. McBrayer '83

In recognition of alumnae's achievements, the Agnes Scott Alumnae Association annually recognizes three outstanding alumnae who have achieved in the areas of career, community service, and College service. During the 1983 Alumnae Weekend, April 15-17, Katharine "Kitty" Woltz Farinholt '33 was presented the Distinguished Career Award; Ruth Slack Roach '40 received the Service to the Community Award; and Frances Gilliland Stukes '24, was honored with the Service to the College Award.

Kitty, an educational consultant and retired school principal, began her distinguished academic career while a student at Agnes Scott. A history major, she was elected to Phi Beta Kappa and to Mortar Board and participated in Pi Alpha Phi, the honorary debating society. She was active in the Athletic Association, Cotillion Club, Blackfriars, and International Relations Club.

After graduation, she taught English for one year in Belmont, N.C. Later she taught English at Westminster Schools in Atlanta for 12 years. While teaching, she earned her master's degree in education at Emory University before being named principal of Girls' Junior High Schools at Westminster in 1964. Upon her retirement in 1974, the administrator wrote to her: "Your grasp of the academic program of the total school, and particularly of the Junior High, made it possible always for you to make an outstanding contribution to the intellectual development of each student under you, and, ultimately to each student in the entire High School. I shall always consider you as one of the chief motivating forces in bringing Westminster to its academic pre-eminence." The following year she was named Leading Lady of Atlanta for her volunteer service and leadership in education.

Kitty is now self-employed as an educational consultant specializing in the placement of students in elementary and secondary schools and colleges and universities. Her goal is "to help individuals of all ages develop their unique possibilities to the fullest through educational counseling."

Kitty's contributions to education as a consultant and former teacher and administrator were recognized in 1982 in a special citation presented her by the National Association for Women Deans, Administrators, and Counselors. She has also been honored by Who's Who of American Women, Dictionary of International Biography, and World's Who's Who of Women.

In addition to her educational career, Kitty has pursued volunteer service which led to her serving as president of All Saints Episcopal Churchwomen, trustee of Appleton Church Home for Girls in Macon, national treasurer of Mortar Board, and as a member of the board of directors of the Child Service Association. She served as President of Agnes Scott Alumnae Association in 1944 and later was instrumental in changing the Alumnae Association's emphasis from a membership drive to a College fund drive.

President, Alumnae Association

This has been an unusually full and interesting year for staff and officers of the Alumnae Association. Due special appreciation are the members of Executive Board, whose ongoing contributions are innumerable. Those whose pictures are shown are your representatives for 1983-84, elected to serve both the College and you, the alumna.

Certainly a most meaningful event in the life of Agnes Scott was the Inauguration of President Ruth Schmidt on April 9, 1983. The President of the Alumnae Association, along with representatives from administration, faculty, students, and trustees, served on the Inaugural Committee. As could be seen through the Quarterly coverage, months of preparation were amply rewarded by a day rich in significance.

President Schmidt's first year has seen many highlights, one of the most noteworthy being the successful completion of the Science Building Campaign. Alumnae gifts and pledges totalled more than half of the $2,750,000 needed to claim the Kresge Challenge Grant of $250,000. This is a testimony to the loyalty, commitment, and dedicated hard work by Agnes Scott alumnae. Those involved in all phases of the organization of this campaign share that bond of enthusiasm which achievement of a common goal can generate!

Two main events on the College calendar, Alumnae Leadership Conference and Alumnae Weekend, both drew record attendance in 1982-83. On October 28 and 29, 125 volunteers spent many hours in information sessions and workshops designed to better equip alumnae to take back to their communities the message of Agnes Scott. Volunteers were introduced to President Schmidt, met with faculty, administration, and students, attended classes, the Outstanding Service to the Community Award, has been involved in countless community and church activities ever since she and her physician husband, Ben, settled in Midway, Ky., in the late 1940's. Earlier, at Agnes Scott, she took on leadership roles as president of Mortar Board, and as a member of the Student Government Association, YWCA Board, and the Athletic Association. She received the Hopkins Jewel and was elected to Phi Beta Kappa. After graduation, she earned a degree in medical social work at Simmons College in Boston.

of the medical profession, Ruth and Ben helped establish a nursing school at Midway College.

Ruth's individual contributions to her community are many. For 10 years in the 1960's she sponsored the community's first Headstart program for underprivileged children in the basement of her home. As chair of a community action committee, she helped establish a five-county Office of Economic Opportunity Program with Headstart classes, job counseling, and nutrition programs. As chair of the Woodford County Recreation Board, she spearheaded the drive to secure federal funds to build a $500,000 multipurpose community center which included a day-care center for low-income working mothers, the first public swimming pool in Midway, and psychiatric day care community rooms.

She has also served on the regional Health Planning Council, the Board of the Lexington Deaf-Oral School, and the Regional Mental Health Board. She has been a member of the Kentucky State Board of Christian Churches; the Board of Higher Education of Christian Churches, USA; and served as president of Women of the Church. At Midway Christian Church she was director of Christian Youth Work for 15 years and a Sunday school teacher for 28 years. While her four children were growing up, she served as a Cub Scout leader and a Girl Scout leader.

Ruth's community has recognized her valuable contributions with several awards, including the Outstanding Citizen Award of Midway in 1960 and 1967 and the Outstanding Citizen Award of Woodford County in 1977. She received the Kentucky Colonel Award in 1977 from the Governor, and in 1982 both she and her husband were presented the Brotherhood Award of the Lexington National Conference of Christians and Jews.

Frances Gilliland Stukes, who received the Outstanding Service to the College Award, first began serving Agnes Scott when she was a student. During her four years, she was a reporter for the Agonistic, right wing on the hockey team, senior representative of SGA, member of Blackfriars, the KUB journalism club, French Club, YWCA cabinet, Lecture Association, secretary of the Propylean Debating Society, and first alto of the Glee Club for all four years. She was elected to HOASC, an honorary organization which was the predecessor of Mortar Board. She was later elected an alumna member of Mortar Board.

Those alumnae who do not know Frances may recognize her married name. In 1925 she married Samuel Guerry Stukes, the former Agnes Scott registrar and chair of the psychology department, who was later named dean of the faculty. As a faculty wife just one year after graduation, Frances began holding an open house for students every Sunday afternoon.

An active member of the Decatur Alumnae Club, Frances has done everything from planting in the Alumnae Garden to participating in fund-raising phonathons. She is fund chair of the Class of 1924. A charter member of the Garden Committee, she has served several times as chair of the committee. She gardens 10 months of the year in the area behind the Alumnae House and frequently provides flowers from her own garden for centerpieces at alumnae events. She has also served as chair of the Anna Young Alumnae House Committee supervising interior decorating and purchasing.

JOHN O. FLINT CELEBRATES 100th

The much admired former employee, John O. Flint, will celebrate his 100th birthday October 1 with his family at a reception in Rebekah Scott Hall. Mr. Flint is the only person who worked under all of the College's first four presidents. His tenure at Agnes Scott was nearly sixty years.

Most alumnae will remember John Flint as the headwaiter in White House dining room who rang the bell for meals. His last appearance on campus was at the Fifty Year Club dinner during Alumnae Weekend last spring.

Birthday greetings may be sent to John O. Flint at his home: 211 Winter Avenue, N.E., Atlanta, GA 30317.

CONTINUING EDUCATION DAY

The Agnes Scott Alumnae Association offers a day of continuing education October 19, which will include a lecture and a tour of Atlanta's new Woodruff Arts Center. The day will include a morning lecture at Agnes Scott, lunch on the campus, trip by MARTA to the Arts Center, a tour of the museum, and return trip to Agnes Scott. The museum, which will open to the public October 15, is a 135,000 square foot facility designed by internationally known architect Richard Meier. It incorporates a circular ramp system revolving around a sky-lit atrium. The six-level building includes three floors of exhibition space.

On exhibit at the museum October 19 will be: Rococo Age: French Masterpieces of the Eighteenth Century and Mark Rothko: Subjects; Virginia Carroll Crawford Collection: American Decorative Arts, 1825-1917; Lucinda Bunnen Photography Collection; and the museum's permanent collection.

The cost of the lecture, lunch, MARTA travel, tour is $10.00 per person. If you wish to participate, please send in the registration form below by October 18.

and Executive Board members had the opportunity for an informal meeting with the Board of Trustees.

Alumnae Weekend was attended by more than 800 participants. In this issue are special articles on the April reunions, Fifty Year Club activities, and outstanding alumnae awards. The presentation by the Scott family of a fine new portrait of Agnes Scott provided a significant moment in the day's activities.

Perhaps no work in the Alumnae Association is more rewarding than that which involves contact with students, the alumnae of the future! A welcome party for freshmen and after-graduation rehearsal farewell for seniors are traditional; and this year's brunch for daughters of alumnae was held in the home of an Atlanta alumna, providing just the needed tonic for the winter doldrums! The Student-Alumnae Liaison Committee solicited alumnae participation in a series of Hub Talks, sponsored by Mortar Board on "Life After Agnes Scott?" The numerous options for women graduates today were discussed, with conversation being informal and lively. Agnes Scott students make a very strong, positive statement for the quality of their education.

As alumnae you will be interested to know that the present president of the Alumnae Association now sits, in an ex officio capacity, on the Board of Trustees. Heretofore the president assumed a place on the Board only at the completion of her two-year term. While this change provides an opportunity for a period of training, it also can be seen as yet another sign from the Board of Trustees and the administration of their high regard for the value and contributions of alumnae.

FIFTY YEAR CLUB

by Laurie K. McBrayer '83

It was truly fitting that the Fifty Year Club should meet this year in the Winter Theatre of the Dana Fine Arts Building. The theatre is named for the club's 1982-83 president, Roberta Winter '27, professor of theatre at Agnes Scott from 1939-1974.

Roberta joined other alumnae and friends for the annual Fifty Year Club program and candle-light dinner during Alumnae Weekend. As president of the club she welcomed everyone "not from the diaphragm" as her ASC speech professor, Miss Frances Gooch, had recommended, but "from the heart."

Pat Collins Dwinnell '28 narrated the program in Dana and announced the names of six "stars from the wide galaxy of the Fifty Year Club."

Fifty Year star, Dr. Jean McAlister '21, who was unable to come to Alumnae Weekend, was announced as a trailblazer for women in the medical field. She first considered being a nurse, but her family doctor encouraged her to become a doctor. She attended the University of North Carolina Medical School and graduated from the University of Pennsylvania Medical School. A pediatrician from 1936 to 1971, she gave 32 years of service to the Percy Street Child Care Center in North Carolina. Jean said in an earlier interview that she particularly remembered her work during the 1948 polio epidemic.

Another star, Willie White Smith '27, earned a master's degree in zoology and a Ph.D. in physiology from Columbia University. She spent one year working in the laboratory of Nobel Prize winner August Krogh and taught zoology at Smith College in 1941. From 1943 to 1977 she worked at the National Institute of Health. During that time she investigated radiation effects and witnessed the atomic bomb test in Nevada. In 1959 Willie was elected to Phi Beta Kappa. She is credited with 70 publications.

Caroline McKinney Clarke '27 lives in the house in which she was born on Candler Street in Decatur. An employee of the Federal Emergency Relief Agency in 1933, she later worked for the National Youth Administration. She helped establish the DeKalb County Department of Public Welfare and served as director for 28 years. Her lifelong interest in local history led her to write two books which have been published, The History of Decatur and The History of Decatur Presbyterian Church, and a magazine article entitled "Days of Old Decatur," published in the spring 1980 edition of Georgia Life magazine. Caroline is the niece of former Agnes Scott English professor Louise McKinney.

Virginia Wing Power '26 was introduced as the "A to Z woman," not just because she received the A to Z Woman's Service Award in Chattanooga in 1975, but because she has been involved in countless activities. The recipient of a Certificate for Service from the Governor of Tennessee and National Council on Aging Award for Community Service in 1962, she has served on boards of the YWCA, Family Service Agency, Senior Neighbors of Chattanooga, National Association State Units on Aging, Council of Community Forces, and many others. Virginia, who enjoys gardening and traveling, studied garden design on a horticultural tour of the Orient in 1975. A pianist and poet, she also plays tennis and won the 1971 Women's Chattanooga Open in doubles.

Annie Wiley Preston '99, Agnes Scott and UNC-Chapel Hill's oldest known living alumna at 104, served as a missionary in Korea with her husband, J. Fairman Preston, for 37 years. They left Korea when World War II began. During her years at Agnes Scott Institute, Annie Wiley concentrated on math, French, and Latin. In 1897 she and several friends decided to create the Institute's first annual to be called the Aurora and to be bound in purple and white. In 1902 she traveled in Europe and was in London when Queen Victoria's son, Edward, was coronated. While she had young children, she taught Bible in the Korean Girls School. In addition to her six children, she has 30 grandchildren, and 18 great-grandchildren. Mrs. Preston has said, "If you want to be distinguished and well-known, just live a long time."

Mrs. Preston's daughter, Shannon Preston Cumming '30, was also recognized. She taught missionary children in Korea and taught Bible for one year at Agnes Scott. After receiving an M.A. in special education for the retarded in 1962 from George Peabody College for Teachers, she worked in a private child development center. She said, "I am lucky to be the daughter and companion of Agnes Scott's most senior alumna, Annie Wiley Preston."

The Fifty Year Club was called to dinner in Rebekah Reception Room by a dinner bell rung by Mr. John Flint, who was headwaiter in the College's White House dining room for many years. (He will celebrate his 100th birthday in October.) During dinner, a strolling violinist played tunes from the twenties such as "Bye Bye Birdie," "Five Foot Two," and "Sheik of Araby."

Before inducting the fiftieth reunion Class of 1933, President Ruth Schmidt thanked the alumnae who had been associated with the College for more than fifty years for allowing her to participate even though she had spent only nine months at Agnes Scott. Each member of the Class of 1933 received a certificate acknowledging her membership in the Fifty Year Club and recognizing her "as a loyal and supportive alumna who will help the College maintain her rich traditions and her high standards of excellence."

The new officers of the Fifty Year Club were elected unanimously from the slate presented by nominations chair Betty Chapman Pirkle '26. They are: Sarah Quinn Slaughter '26, president; LaMyra Kane Swanson '32, vice president; Lamar Lowe Connell '27, secretary-treasurer; and Frances Gilliland Stukes '24, chair of the nominating committee.

CORRECTION/CORRECTION

In the listing of presidents of the Agnes Scott Alumnae Association as shown on page 363 of Lest We Forget: An Account of Agnes Scott College, the name of one president was inadvertently omitted. This alumna is Katharine Woltz Farinholt '33, who served a one-year term as president in 1944-1945. It is deeply regretted that this omission occurred.

Virginia's Turn

Virginia Brown McKenzie '47

Greetings to the alumnae through our special edition of Main Events. In the future, this tabloid, produced by the Office of Public Affairs, will carry a special insert called Alumnae News with news about classes, clubs, Alumnae Weekend, Alumnae Leadership Conferences, continuing education, trips and all alumnae activities.

In addition, Agnes Scott College will publish, through the Public Affairs Office, a literary magazine four times yearly for the alumnae, trustees, parents, and friends. Our staffs are working together to effect efficiency and to allow specialization. New and better services will be provided for all, including alumnae.

The message from the College is that we have achieved our goal of $3,000,000 in gifts and pledges for the renovation of the Science Building and that the work has been completed. Most important of all to alumnae is that President Schmidt has acknowledged many times the outstanding work done by the alumnae on this campaign. For the alumnae gave and pledged more than half of the total amount.

Another important development is that our alumnae percentage of participation this past year has increased more than 6% from the low 26% of 1981-82 to 32% for 1982-83. Alumnae are the greatest!

Our goal for the next two years is to reach out to more alumnae to increase even more our percentage of participation. We are getting closer to that goal of 50% that I encouraged more than six months ago. Many alumnae are discovering that they can give more to the College. More of us need to contribute, and all of us need to contribute more.

For our college needs more money. Operating expenses are greater; equipment costs more, and faculty salaries are higher; more students need financial assistance. And most important of all, the College will preserve its excellence and increase its greatness for future generations if the alumnae provide strong support.

We can certainly do that!

We grieve over the death on July 4 of Eleanor Carpenter. She has shared her account of many years' teaching at Buena Vista, Va., and her happy years later at the Episcopal Church Home in Louisville. She accomplished much. She left us an example to emulate. Downtown Atlanta Senior Services (DASS) is the program presented weekly by five downtown churches. Betty Floding Morgan was one of the leaders in instigating this. The material covers health, Bible study, lunch, travelogs. In August Betty will spend two weeks in Vienna. She is also embarking on a course about computers... An article in the Augusta Chronicle/Herald in June featured Louise Flucker, who has just retired from a teaching career that began 61 years ago. She has taught French, Latin, social studies, math, English, science, history, and geography in several different schools. In 1949 she was elected McDuffie County school superintendent, the only woman ever to hold that position. Louise tried to retire from teaching last year but her headmaster at Wilkes Academy wouldn't hear of it; she was the first teacher at school each day. Until recent years Louise, once a championship girls' basketball coach, played in student-faculty basketball games... "Catherine and I are still in the big old house—too big, but we haven't made other plans yet"... Eddith Patterson Blair has been attending to such activities as having the house painted and carpets relaid, though she has serious eye trouble, and she and Hoke are no longer able to drive... Ellen Wilson Chambliss delighted us with a letter about her friend and neighbor, Margaret Wade: "Last October Margaret was especially invited to attend the Montreat College alumni reunion, transportation provided by former students. Margaret had served the college for twenty years as teacher and assistant dean, and finally as dean. At this reunion Margaret was seated on the stage, presented with red roses, and tendered an appreciative tribute. It was announced that the alumni had established a scholarship fund in her honor." Ellen ends with the news that she and Margaret had been elected elders in their respective churches. Congratulations from us all, Margaret!... For 1921, present at Alumnae Day were Thelma Brown and Seals Aiken at the Saturday luncheon, Elizabeth Enloe MacCarthy at the Fifty Year Club dinner Friday; Betty Floding and Sarah Fulton at dinner, luncheon, and alumnae meeting. Dr. Schmidt had graciously invited the Fifty Year Club classes to the President's home, where she served on the back terrace near the May Day Dell. Betty and Sarah also went to the bookstore to get our copies of Lest We Forget, the most complete history of ASC, autographed by Dr. Ed McNair (former student of Sarah's). Every word is written with success and read with pleasure. Get your copy! Also present in absentia was our Jean McAlister, one of the six members of the Fifty Year Club classes honored at the meeting in Dana Fine Arts Building before the Friday dinner. A fitting tribute was read to Jean's work as an M.D. in Greensboro. Did you know her specialty was children? We regretted that Jean's brother's illness prevented her presence.

'22 Anne Ruth Moore Crawford has recovered nicely from a broken hip and went to New York for the high school graduation of a granddaughter who will enter William and Mary in the fall. Her three grandsons are all in college... Otto Gilbert Williams is recovering from a fractured ankle.

'24 SECRETARY: Polly Stone Buck (Mrs. N.S.), 2 Walden St., Hamden, CT 06517.

Helen Wright Smith and her husband had signed up for a tour of England and Scotland during the summer but cancelled it since Devere was ill in the spring. He is driving again and leading his usual active life, but Columbia, S.C., seems more appealing right now than the bleak highlands of Scotland!... When I read about the floods in New Orleans, I wrote Helen Lane Comfort to know if the water had touched her. There was two to three feet of water on the street where her apartment is located, water in the basement, and also the elevator, which refused to budge for a while! Since her husband's death on October 15, of last year, Helen Lane has lived alone...

Our very sad news is that Lillian McAlpine Butner died suddenly on April 1 in Winston-Salem. One of her two daughters had come to spend Easter with her and was with her at the time. She is survived by another daughter and nine grandchildren.

'25 SECRETARY: Eugenia Thompson Akin (Mrs. John M.), 5 Glen Iris Pk., Birmingham, AL 35205.

Louise Buchanan Proctor had a cruise on the inland waterways along the Atlantic in May. Her cabinmate was Elizabeth Henry Shands '24... Eugenia Thompson Akin is still working the Internationals, gardening, telling stories to children, and writing when the spirit moves.

'26 SECRETARY: Rosalie Wootten Deck (Mrs. L. Linton), 1242 Spencer Ave., East Point, GA 30344.

Anne Hubbard Lee is recovering from a broken hip... Helen Bates Law continues to be active in the Military Affiliate Radio System for N.Y. State and also in the Amateur Radio System. She has found the joy of quilting. The goings and comings of grandchildren keep life lively... Olivia Swann has found time and pleasure in handwork again. Cake decorating and ceramics claim some of her time, too. She enjoyed a trip to EPCOT in the spring, and early in June she was one of the 14,000 Presbyterians present at the historic merger of the northern and southern Presbyterian churches... Tom and Juanita Greer White have had visits from members of both sides of the family, which Juanita says "change the pace pleasantly." Juanita and Tom were headed for Alaska as this news went to press... Catherine Mock Hodgin and Doc have again enjoyed their annual trip on the Mississippi Queen, this time accompanied by their granddaughter, 15. They are proud, too, of their grandson who won a scholarship in the geology department of Mississippi State... Florence Perkins Ferry is happy about her new home in the retirement complex called Lenbrook Square on Peachtree Road in Atlanta. It has just been completed and she finds such attractive provisions for comfort and safety of older residents. She has found that several long time acquaintances also live there... Dr. Beaumont Davison III, son of Mary Ella Zellars Davison is president of Tri-State U in Angola, Ind.

'27 ACTING SECRETARY: Josephine Bridgman (Dr.) 715 Kirk Rd., Decatur, GA 30030.

Our class was well represented at the Fifty Year Club dinner in April. Robert Winter and Pat Collins Dwinell '28 did the planning and presiding. Two of the four "Stars of the Show" were our classmates: Callie McKinney Clarke, recognized for her research and writing about the early history of this area, and Willie White Smith for her radiation research at the National Institute of Health. We are proud of them. The rest of us, including Lillian Clement Adams, Willie Mae Coleman Duncan, Mildred Cowan Wright, Martha Crowe Eddins, Frances Freeborn Pauley, Martha Johnson Wilson, Louise Lovejoy Jackson, Miriam Preston St. Clair, Emily Stead, and Jo Bridgman sat back and enjoyed the delightful occasion... In January Frances Freeborn Pauley made an ASC convocation report on her work as an Advocate for the Poor in the Georgia Legislature. She has devoted her considerable abilities and energies to this cause for years with no thought of retiring...Miriam Preston St. Clair, retired from college English teaching, is having time to work on a long-planned novel...The 13 of us exhibited a list of ailments which, if alphabetized, would make a good index for a textbook in gerontology, but we were all "feeling fine and fighting back!"..

Your secretary is well aware that the news items which appear here are very largely from those of us who live in the Atlanta area. We would so love to hear from our other classmates. Where are you? What are you doing? PLEASE send us some news.

'28 SECRETARY:

Pat Kimble Matthews lost her brother Dr. Andrew Kimble, June 17, 1982...Catherine Baker Evans, Jura Taffar Cole, Grace Fincher Trimble, and Flora Riley Bynum attended the Fifty Year Club dinner in April. They missed those of us who were not there...Peggy Link Gatlin's husband has been ill but is recovering nicely from cataract and hernia surgery. She enjoyed a Christmas stay in New York...Olive Weeks Collins is enjoying "flying trips" to visit her children. Making hand knitted gifts for her grandchildren keep her busy...Diana Dyer Wilson was elected trustee emeritus of ASC in May. She has enjoyed an "acquitting" class, and the exercising in the water has greatly improved her arm. She and her husband enjoy long stays in their condominium on Sea Island...These are more responses to our second request for news. Thank you, and make it more and more.

'33 SECRETARY:
Margaret Glass Womeldorf (Mrs. John A.), 963 Wren Way, Harrisburg, VA 22801.

Our long-anticipated fiftieth reunion was all we could have hoped for and more. There were 47 present, with a number of husbands. Activities began with a lunch at Houston Mill House. Special guests were Dr. Ruth Schmidt,

Dr. and Mrs. George Hayes, Dr. and Mrs. Paul McCain, Miss Llewellyn Wilburn '19, Mrs. Virginia McKenzie '47, Mrs. Adele D. McKee '48, Mrs. Mary McDonald Sledd '34, Mrs. Frances Statham, and Mr. Robert Lowrance. Tish Rockmore Nash kept us in stitches with her reminiscences, "Our Hearts Were Young and Gay," based on items we sent her. Friday afternoon we all had opportunity to meet our new president, Dr. Schmidt, at the reception in Dana Fine Arts Building. Dinner was served in Rebekah. We were honored by having our own Kitty Woltz Farinholt selected as a distinguished alumna. Mary Sturtevant Cunningham reported that our class gift to the Library has reached $7,311.50. We paraded to May Day Dell for lunch, behind our class banner made by Willa Beckham Lowrance and John McKenzie. This was followed by a reception at the president's home. Dinner at Piedmont Driving Club was a fitting climax for our reunion. We appreciate the great job done by the committee: Betty Cobb Boyd and Marlyn Tate Lester, co-chairs; Kitty Woltz Farinholt, president, Willa Beckham Lowrance, Jo Clark Fleming, Roberta Kilpatrick Stubblebine, and Tish Rockmore Nash. Those attending and not already mentioned were: Mary Charles Alexander Parker, Maude Armstrong Hudson, Margaret Bell Burt, Margaret Belote Morse, Elizabeth Bolton, Alice Bullard Nagle, Evelyn Campbell Beale, Sarah Cooper Freyer, Porter Cowles Pickell, Jewell Coxwell, Ora Craig Stuckey, Margaret Ellis Pierce, Helen Etheredge Griffin, Jeannette Etheridge Park, May Belle Evans, Winona Ewbank Covington, Bessie-Meade Friend Drake, Thelma Firestone Hogg, Betty Fleming Virgin, Margaret Glass Womeldorf, Virginia Heard Feder, Lucile Heath McDonald, Sarah Hewlett Johnson, Anne Hudmon Reed, Mary Hudmon Simmons, Polly Jones Jackson, Rosemary May Kent, Mildred Miller Davis, Eulalia Napier Sutton, Gail Nelson Blain, La Trelle Robertson Duncan, Mary Louise Robinson Black, Laura Spivey Massie, Douschka Sweets Ackerman, Margaret Telford St. Amant, Elizabeth Thompson Cooper, Rosalind Ware Blackard, Lucile Woodbury Ranck, and Madge York Wesley.

Marlyn Lester sent a check to the college for $463.85, the sum left over after all reunion bills were paid. And Tish Nash has two dozen copies of the class programs, which she will send to anyone who wants one...The class extends deep sympathy to Anne Hudmon Reed and Mary Hudmon Simmons in the death of their mother in May...Julia Finley McCutchen was sick at reunion time but said she joined us in spirit. She continues to tend her sister-in-law in a nursing home near the McCutchen home in Bishopville, S.C....Lib Lynch wrote that, in spite of cutting back on responsibilities, she was still too involved to get to the reunion. She is active in church, Common Cause, Interfaith Coalition on Aging, peacemaking and nuclear arms control, and working toward more economic justice, especially for the poor. She felt honored when two credit union state leagues she pioneered and was managing director 36 years ago invited her to a special celebration as speaker...Virginia Heard Feder and John find retirement in Sun City Center ideal. She paints, rings handbells, works in a library, and has taught in a community college there, making use of her PhD...Bessie-Meade Friend Drake has been living in her old family home for several years. She visited her daughter, Betty '65, husband, and three children in England in May. She stays busy with church and community affairs...Mary Hudmon Simmons and Anne Hudmon Reed left June 14 with the group Dr. Bicknese, ASC German professor, escorted to tour central Europe and commemorate Martin Luther's 500th anniversary...Lib Moore Ambrose sent her daughter, Lisa '60, back to Scott, and she is an avid fan. One son is an ophthalmologist, another an architect, and they have eight grandchildren.

'34 SECRETARY:
Marguerite Jones Love (Mrs. J. Erskine, Sr.), 4052 Peachtree Dunwoody Rd., NE, Atlanta, GA 30342.

Please start saving pictures, clippings, etc., for a scrapbook. Contact your special friends and plan to join us for the "important date" in April...We learned that Elaine Heckle Carmichael, a reading specialist at Emory, retired in June...Frances Adair and Mary Sloan Laird had a wonderful trip to Italy. Mary's husband, Sam, and George Papageorge planned the trip for Emory's Senior University. Susan L. Puckett (Mary and Sam's daughter) is Dean of Students at Emory's Candler School of Theology and is an ordained Methodist minister...Rudene Taffar Young is president of the Decatur ASC Club for 1983-84...Aloe Risse Barron Leitch attended the Continental Congress, National Society Daughters of the American Revolution. She is serving as recording secretary of the Georgia State Society...We were all sorry to hear of Melba Hollis Callaway's death.

'37 SECRETARY:
Isabel McCain Brown (Mrs. William C.), P.O. Box 236, Montreat, NC 28757.

HELP! How about some news from you class members?...Florence E. Little died March 31, 1983. She was the first woman treasurer of the World Division of Global Ministries of the Methodist Church. She was also an accomplished speaker, and a real leader in urging corporate responsibility on ethical issues. Her biography was published along with other Methodist leaders such as Charles and John Wesley in the book Endless Line of Splendor. She had returned to Atlanta after her retirement several years ago...Frances Steele Garrett attended the inauguration of Dr. Ruth Schmidt at ASC, also alumnae board meeting, and also the alumnae luncheon for the annual alumnae weekend...Sarah Johnson Linney wrote: "In April at First Presbyterian Church, Orlando, Fla., Joyce Roper McKey's '38 daughter, Joy was married to Rodney Beasley. '43 SECRETARY:

Mary Anne Atkins Paschal (Mrs. D. D.), 2821 Orion Dr., Decatur, GA 30030.

Our fortieth reunion was a totally smashing success under the direction of Dot Holloran Addison, chairperson for reunion events. Emily Anderson Hightower, Mary Brock Williams, Alice Clements Shinall, Nancy Green Carmichael, Swanna Henderson Cameron, Ruby Rosser Davis, and Mary Anne Atkins Paschal assisted Dot with social plans and fund raising for our special reunion gift to ASC. Mary Brock designed and made our stunning banner for our class parade to the May Day Dell. Dot and Tom Addison entertained all class members and their guests with a buffet supper in their home on April 14. It was an elegant evening filled with joy and happiness as we greeted our dear classmates and their husbands, ate gorgeous food, and visited every minute. April 15 offered a day of fine activities ending with a reception for President Schmidt and retiring faculty member Mary Sheats. On Saturday Raddy called our class meeting to order in "our" room 205 in the Science Hall. Raddy was reelected president (for life this time), Mary Anne was reelected secretary, Anne Paisley Boyd was elected fund chairperson. The Reunion Gift Committee reported total gifts to date (April 16, 1983) in the amount of $94,509.98, only $5,490.02 will still be needed to fund completely our gift of a refurbished laboratory classroom in the memory of Miss Carrie Scandrett. A standing tribute of thanks to Swanna and Dan Cameron for their generous gift actually making our dream a reality. So far 54 class members have contributed or made pledges. December 1984 is the final date for reunion gift participation. In the meantime our class received recognition for our outstanding gift and a proper dedication time will be selected and announced...News from some absent members told of Nancy Hirsh Rosengarten's serious illness, also of Mary Jane Auld Linker's serious health problems. We send both our love and prayers. Helen Sommerour Zimmerman's health is much better; Clara Rountree Couch sent her love but was unable to attend after Harold's recent death. Our deepest love and sympathy to Clara. Pat Patterson Graybeal is working in New York after her divorce. Please, everyone, send any news you have of yourself or any other class member. We need to keep in touch more than ever as we look to our 45 year reunion.

After a delightful picnic lunch we parted until the climax event—the Big Reunion Dinner at Petite Auberge where we enjoyed a sumptuous dinner and were honored by having President Schmidt at our head table for the evening. After dinner Raddy led in a fine time of remembering and sharing. Then President Schmidt shared her thoughts about Agnes Scott and the future awaiting alumnae and students alike. To meet President Schmidt makes clear the absolute rightness of having a president with her talents and charisma as our new leader. Our group was large, 65 in all, including husbands. Those attending and not already mentioned were Anna Branch Black Hansell, Flora Campbell McLain, Mary Ann Cochran Abbott, Laura Cumming Northey, Martha Dale Moses, Jane Dinsmore Lowe, Marge Downie Brown, Jeanne Eakin Salyer, Anne Friarson Smoak, Helen Hale Lawton, Dorothy Hopkins McClure, Mardia Hopper Brown, Frances Kiser, Leona Leavitt Walker, Dorothy Nash Daniel, Betty Pegram Sessoms, Anne Scott Wilkinson, Helen Smith Woodward, Aileen Still Hendley, Pat Stokes Barnes, Kay Wright Phillips, Mamie Sue Barker Wolf, Sally Sue Howe Bell, Lillian Roberts Deakins, Martha Ann Smith Roberts, Page Lancaster Codington, Bizzell Roberts Shanks, Joella Craig Good, newly married! Joella will continue as Mrs. Good until her retirement as principal of an inner city school in Miami. Afterwards she will assume her new name, Mrs. Jack Dendy. Congratulations, Joella!...Start making plans now to attend our next reunion; it's a glorious time together!

Lella Powell Jones and Harry's son, Harry, Jr. married in June. Promptly afterwards, Harry and Lella went to Europe; what a way to "recupe" from a wedding!... Vicky Alexander Sharp's husband, Henry, has been named Radford Professor of Mathematics at Washington and Lee U. He has been a member of the faculty at Emory since 1956. The Sharps have bought a house outside of Lexington on a mountain with a beautiful view and have room for guests! Daughter Peggy graduated from U of Colorado in June and son, Hal, from UVA... Maud Van Dyke Jennings and Lee came to Atlanta in June for the historic reunification of the Presbyterian Church... You must have noticed in the spring Quarterly that, while we did have a few items, our class news wasn't exactly overwhelming! I've begged you to write and even threatened to fill up the whole section with an account of the doings of my grandchildren (which I could do and they are darling!). However, you don't respond. What's the excuse? We all really want to hear. Let us know about new grandbabies, trips, recent honors, new marriages in the family, contacts with other class members. WRITE!

Anne Selph MacKay writes from Ocala, Fla.: "My life has been in the political arena. Buddy served 12 years in the Florida House and Senate and is now a freshman member of Congress. He commutes to Ocala each weekend, and I go up to D.C. about every six weeks. We have four sons: Ken, who graduated from Furman in December; John, a senior at Rice; Ben, a junior in high school; and Andy, a second grader (Surprise!)" Anne is hoping to come to our twenty-fifth reunion in April '84... Helen Culpepper Stacey and Mary Mac Witherspoon Harrell were in attendance when daughters, Helen and Frances were inducted into Mortar Board in May... Ann Rivers Payne Hutcheson has been much involved in church activities and is doing volunteer work at the high school in Vienna, Va. She is president of St. Margaret's alumnae.

SECRETARY:

Jo Jarrell Wood (Mrs. Robert E.), 3635 Winbrook Ln., Tucker, GA 30084.

Nancy Stone Hough's son, Martin, 16, has won the state AAA wrestling championship!... Alice Frazer Evans sent a blurb on her latest book, Human Rights: A Dialogue Between the First and Third Worlds. Alice and her husband traveled two years on six continents to gather data... Ann Ashford Lehfelddt appeared with her whole family in Our Town at Central Presbyterian Church. Nancy Hughes Peabody came up from Americus to help change 41 yards of material into curtains. Ann's husband was an exchange student in Germany in his junior year in high school, and they went to Germany in June for a reunion. Daughter is going to Governors Honors this summer. Ann's second book is sitting with an agent in New York, waiting for publication... Anne Pollard Withers writes that she is back to work as a self-employed computer programmer on a contract basis. She is serving as secretary of the Episcopal Church Women of St. Michael's Church in Raleigh and teaching fourth graders about computers and programming as a volunteer. Anne's mother, Annette V. Pollard, died in March. Our thoughts are with you, Anne... Teresa Kindred Brown writes that after 2½ years in Bonn, Germany, "living among the diplomats," they are back in Sparta, N.J. While in Bonn, she wrote orientation material for new members to the American community there—a total of seven booklets. She was able to renew contact with a German family with whom she had lived in 1956 as an

A.F.S. student. "The opportunities for travel and international living were really the answer to a childhood wish—going a long way away and staying a long time!" Their two daughters, 16 and 13, were with them.

Rosemary Kittrell worked as a full time volunteer issues coordinator with the Bo Ginn for Governor Campaign. Since our reunion she spent two weeks in Alaska seeing that great countryside and wildlife. She also ripped out the old kitchen in her home and installed a whole new one which she designed herself. She writes that Harriett Smith Bates and family have moved to Americus, Ga. Thank you, Rosemary. I hope our reunion party is at your house next time! Margaret Anne Lipham Blakely added a computer to her accounting practice, giving her extra time to travel. Son No. 1, Grant, is in the Navy, stationed in San Francisco. Son No. 2, Ken, is in West Point. Anne is treasurer of Trinity Episcopal Church in Fort Worth and active in several professional organizations. Skiing in Banff Springs, Canada, in January with their younger son and two friends of his was a blast! Ana Maria Aviles McCaa stays busy with her husband, five children, and continues to enjoy her part-time career in interior design. Grace Lynn Ouzts Curry and family live in Greenville, S.C. She is experiencing the "empty nest syndrome." John is at Wake Forest, and daughter Twilley is at Georgia Tech. Emily Pancake is now divisional sales manager of Miller and Rhoads in Charlottesville, Va. The store sells everything for a home, from measuring cups to china to sofas! In April of '82 she spent two weeks in Heidelberg, Germany, visiting in the neighborhood where she lived and worked one winter. She also enjoyed exploring some new parts of Germany. Nancy Hughes Peabody has written a novel, an adventure-love story, with the background of the Colonels' regime in Greece (1967-74). This meant research into recent Greek politics. She is now in the process of finding an agent. Nancy lives in Americus, Ga., too. Bunny Henry Coates is studying anthropology at Bryn Mawr, has bought a horse, and rides a great deal. She, George, sons George, Jr., 19, and Alex, 15, travelled through Ireland, Wales, and England.

'62 SECRETARY: Peggy Frederick Smith (Mrs. Glen C.), 951 Lookout Dr., Kingsport, TN 37665. Seven of you wrote in response to my April letter. Many thanks from all of us! I hope more of you will do the same. Sue Amidon Mount continues to work as a master's level psychologist at the Spartanburg, S.C., mental health center in addition to working in a small private practice. She recently bought an old house. She thoroughly enjoys her busy, typical 13- and 15-year-old boys. Betty Gillespie Proctor and Julian are in the process of building a home, which temporarily interrupted her course work in data processing. But she's close, with just one more course to take. She and family saw Dr. and Mrs. Alston last Thanksgiving at Callaway Gardens. Betty was encouraged "by the fact that they recognized me after 20 years!" Margaret Holley Milam's garden club is helping the Garden Club of Virginia with a project to bring bluebirds back to the state. Sue Mustoe Lloyd's eldest son graduated from high school with a flourish in June. Ranked eighth in a class of 235, David was chosen as one of the four graduation speakers, named Outstanding Rutherfordton Teenager by the Jaycees, won the school's DAR Good Citizenship Award, and was a player on a winning baseball team. He is off to Davidson in the fall, to play baseball and study. His brothers, Stephen, 15, and Kevin, 12, are also baseball players and active in scouting.

Bebe Walker Reicher is thoroughly enjoying not having a job this year. Says things at home run so much more smoothly. Anyone visiting the L.A.-Orange County area should get in touch with Peggy Mathis Lipsey, if you can find her at home between trips. In the spring she visited Egypt and in June went to Rome. Husband, Frantz, is vice president of Air California; they have two teenaged sons; Peggy is senior vice president of the Eldorado Bank in charge of personnel, training and marketing. They live in Irvine...

Birmingham is the home of Julia Duncan Sather. Remember her first book? A second one, Alabama, a photographic book on the state for which Julia wrote the text for Ed Malle's photographs, was published in June. In addition, she is now vice president of Group IV, the advertising agency where she has been working for the past six years as writer and account executive. Lynne Lambert Bower is, as of May 26, Mrs. Alexander (Sandy) Andrews. Lynne is continuing her real estate work in Ridgefield, Conn., where she specializes in the marketing of antique houses. Small world report: Sandy's college roommate and wife are good friends of Louise Kimsey Sheftall, whom they have seen in NYC. Lynne's daughter, Laurie, is a high school senior; son, David, is a student at U of Colorado.

'64 SECRETARIES: Mary Womack Cox (Mrs.

John T., III), 1500 N.E. 139 St., North Miami, FL 33161 and Mary Mac Mitchell Saunders (Mrs. F. F., Jr.), 1911 Collard Dr., Atlanta, GA 30318.

Barbara White Guarienti has been named chamber manager of the Livermore, Calif., Chamber of Commerce. Prior to assuming this position, Barbara led a community-wide assessment to school needs and worked to get community participation necessary to qualify for Early Childhood Education funds. She also wrote a grant proposal that earned $50,000 for Portola School students. She has worked on the city's beautification, redevelopment and design review committees.

'66 SECRETARY: Betsy Anderson (Ms.), 34 West 85th St., Apt. A, New York, NY 10024.

Katherine Bell Hunter is associate professor of botany at U of Nevada in Las Vegas. She was married in 1981 and has a son, Elijah Daniel.

'67 SECRETARY: Cynthia Carter Bright (Mrs. Colen E., Jr.), 1013 Conjurers Dr., Colonial Heights, VA 23834.

The New York Times featured Susan Phillips in an article in May. She is senior member and acting chairman of the federal Commodity Futures Trading Commission. Becca Herbert Schenk has had her second child, Mark. She was visited by Dudley Lester Tye and family while Dudley was on a skiing vacation in Glenwood Springs, Colo., where Becca lives.

'68 SECRETARY: Betty Derrick (Ms.), 15 Mt. Paran Rd., NE, Atlanta, GA 30342.

The class of 1968 had a great fifteenth reunion, highlighted by a lovely party at Nancy Thompson Beane's home. New officers were elected: Ethel Ware Gilbert Carter, president; Nancy Thompson Beane, vice president; Betty Derrick, secretary (send news!); and Christie Theriot Woodfin and Jean Binkley Thrower, fund chairmen. Our thanks to Mary Lamar Adams and Alsie Bell Churchman for their past service... We missed everyone who couldn't come to the reunion and enjoyed hearing from several classmates who wrote to share their news. Kate Covington is teaching music theory at U of Kentucky. Kate received her PhD from Indiana U. Zolly Zollicoffer is also at U.K. pursuing studies for a doctorate in psychology. Zolly had previously earned an MA in speech. Susan McCann Butler and Scott are teaching at Thomas Nelson Community College and are enjoying Anne Elizabeth, 1. Anne Heinemann was recently ordained an Episcopal minister. Lucy Barron married Bob Eggleston April 23, 1983, and moved to Columbia, S.C. Her consulting business, Letter-Perfect, Inc., which specializes in communications skills training, now has two branches, Columbia and Atlanta... In getting reacquainted at the reunion, we found our interest and activities were as far ranging as the locations we now call home. Olivia Hicks is an administrator of a diagnostic residential treatment center for disturbed adolescents in NYC. Becky Griffin Ramsey is organist at the First Methodist Church, Covington, Ga., where she and Sam are building a new home. Alice Griffin Long and Dr. Nat Long, pastor of St. James United Methodist Church, Atlanta, have two teen-aged sons. Susan Aikman Miles has continued the family newspaper tradition. She is managing editor of the Marietta Daily Journal. Sylvia Harby Hutton traveled all the way from Pullman, Wash. Sylvia works part-time as a Gallup pollster in rural Whitman County and serves as a Brownie leader, La Leche League leader, and is active in Episcopal Church Women. She and Dave have five children: Jay, 12; Leah, 8; Cecily, 5; Collin, 2; and Tommy, 1. Laura Warlick Jackson is an economic statistician with the Bureau of Labor Statistics in Atlanta. She and Larry have two sons, aged 10 and 8.

Ann Teat Gallant is the director of marketing at The Baltimore Sun. Husband, Phillip, is an antique dealer. Their children are Shannon, 17, and Jason, 15. Betty Miller Layng and Bill are the parents of Blythe, 3, and Will, 5, and live in Atlanta. Betty is librarian at Trinity School. Cindy

INAUGURATION VIDEOTAPE AVAILABLE

A videotape of President Ruth Schmidt's Inauguration celebration is now available to alumnae clubs who wish to have it for alumnae programs. The 20-minute videotape, "Women, Work and Well-Being: Inauguration of Ruth A. Schmidt," is an overview of the issues discussed during the days of the Inauguration, including the Inauguration ceremony, the panel discussion on work and well-being, and the Glee Club concert dedicated to President Schmidt.

Included on the same tape is a five-minute news feature from WAGA-TV on our first woman president. Both are interesting and entertaining features for club meetings. If you are interested in obtaining a copy of the videotape for a club meeting, contact Virginia B. McKenzie, Director of Alumnae Affairs, Agnes Scott College, Decatur, GA 30030; 404/373-2571.

SEARCHING FOR ANECDOTES

Now that Lest We Forget, the history of Agnes Scott College is completed, Dr. Edward McNair is undertaking as his next project to compile and organize all the stories and anecdotes that he can gather about the College and the people who have been related to it. He already has a sizeable collection of such stories, but he would like to enlarge this collection as much as possible. Thus, he requests all alumnae to send to him any amusing anecdotes they remember from their days on campus. This material may be sent to him at the College. In advance, he thanks all who will participate in this effort.

FACES FROM THE PAST. This photo from our historical file is not identified with the names of these students. If you can identify anyone in the photo, please contact the Office of Alumnae Affairs. We also want to know the year it was taken. Write or call Elizabeth Wood Smith, Agnes Scott College, Decatur, GA 30030; 404/373-2571.

GREAT SCOTT!

For years, Agnes Scott has stood as a quiet landmark overlooking the city of Decatur, only opening its campus to the public for special cultural events. But on Saturday, October 29, the campus sprang alive, bursting with color, music, children's laughter and festivity. More than 1,500 people came to the campus during the "Great Scott!" festival that day, where they got a glimpse of college life.

Cloggers and Studio Dance Theatre performers entertained crowds with an assortment of choreographed dances and costumes while the College's theatre troupe frightened many children during their haunted house. Faculty held slide shows, lab demonstrations and lectures in their classrooms. Visitors browsed through art exhibits and a library book sale and watched synchronized swimming performances.

Children were fascinated by computer demonstrations and getting rainbows, hearts and pumpkins painted on their faces by Agnes Scott students.

From 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. on the breezy, sunny autumn day, visitors toured the campus, participated in mixed doubles tennis, ate cheese and fruit, and explored various booths displaying College activities—the numerous activities kept a continuous crowd on the campus until the festival closed.

This summer I heard a speaker make the statement that there are not many truth-speaking traditions. And she went on to elaborate, giving examples of ways in which tradition does not always speak the truth. Of course we can think of our own examples. One which comes to mind at the beginning of the academic year is that of the hazing of freshmen at many colleges and universities. Inflicting bodily harm and/or ridiculing one another is certainly not part of a truth-speaking tradition. Nor was the practice which for years relegated black people to the back of the bus. Neither is that which ascribes certain tasks to men and women by gender instead of by ability or body strength. None of these traditions when examined can be accepted as truth-speaking.

In addition to the fact that there are traditions which are not truth-speaking and which must be reexamined and discarded, there is also a tendency in society and its institutions to retain the outer forms of tradition without understanding the core of meaning which must be reinterpreted for each generation. Jaroslav Pelikan, eminent church historian at Yale, distinguishes between tradition and traditionalism which, as he says, "gives tradition a bad name" by "embalming" it. A tradition may have validity, may be truth-speaking at the time of its inception, but it ceases to speak the truth if attention is focused on its form, obscuring the underlying reasons for its existence. Perhaps this is what the Spanish writer who used the pen-name Azorin meant when he said that those who truly love the past do not want to make it present.

What really concerns us in the ongoing life of people and institutions is, as Pelikan says, "the mysterious relationship between continuity and change." All of us are in some way inheritors of the tradition of liberal learning for women and the basic principles of this institution.

What I wish for us is that, as we combine our own personal backgrounds with Agnes Scott's community heritage, we take as task the consideration of what is to be continued and what is to be changed. In the process we can undergird what Dr. W. Edward McNair in his book, Lest We Forget, says has been the determinative characteristic of the College—a dissatisfaction with the status quo, a desire always to be better than now. This desire always to be better than now is indeed a truth-speaking tradition, and worthy of our best efforts.

MARY JANE KERR CORNELL '74 NAMED AS COLLEGE'S FIRST CHAPLAIN

Her title is "Reverend Cornell," but she prefers to be called Mary Jane.

In her relaxed manner, leaning back in an office chair and holding a mug of coffee, she explains her entrance into the ministry.

A daughter of a Presbyterian minister, she followed suit and graduated, not only Phi Beta Kappa from Agnes Scott, but with honors from Columbia Theological Seminary. Among her honors are the Wild's Book Prize for achieving the highest academic average of her graduating class. She also received awards for her preaching and a theological paper she had written.

With so many honors and yet such a casual and warm approach, Mary Jane Cornell made the perfect choice as the first chaplain of Agnes Scott College since its founding.

Also the associate pastor at Columbia Presbyterian Church, Mary Jane's main focus at Agnes Scott is to help students understand how faith in God is not separate from everything else they do.

"Religion is not a separate segment of one's life," she explained. "It's integrated into every part of a person's life. Faith is connected to a student's social and academic life." She interrupted her ideas with laughter, explaining that prayer was vital for getting through some of her college courses.

Mary Jane said the Christian commitment is a strong part of Agnes Scott's purpose of developing a student physically, emotionally, intellectually, as well as spiritually.

According to Ruth Schmidt, the College president who decided to add the first chaplain, "The appointment of a chaplain at Agnes Scott should signify that the College takes seriously the portion of its mission statement relating to its roots in Presbyterianism and its commitment to the Christian faith.... The College has long provided for many types of counseling, whether it be health related, academic or psychological health, but we had no formal way to provide for spiritual counseling."

Mary Jane will be devoting two days weekly on campus to counsel, advise, and help students. She will also assist in worship services at the College and hold informal chats at College convocations.

Since she grew up with a minister father, she always "felt at home in the church. I've always been a part of the church and learned the value of it as a nurturing community," she said. When Mary Jane moved to Cambridge, Mass., with her husband,

Gary, she got involved in a church while he attended graduate school at Harvard. There she taught and led group discussions. During that time, her sense of call to the ministry was confirmed. She returned to Atlanta after her husband graduated and attended Columbia Seminary. After graduating, she moved to the church adjacent to the seminary where she assists in worship services, Christian education and caring for the congregation.

Her new responsibilities at the College in addition to her work at the church leaves her with little time of her own, but Mary Jane knows she's made the right choice. "I've got a job where I love to go to work each morning."

PRESIDENT SCHMIDT ELECTED TO WCC EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE

President Ruth Schmidt was elected to the executive committee of the Women's College Coalition to serve a three-year term. Comprised of 70 women's college across the nation, most of which are private liberal arts colleges, the Coalition seeks to promote women's colleges in the media, thereby increasing public awareness of women's educational needs. Only college presidents serve on the nine-member executive board which sets policy, oversees activities and decides priorities of the Coalition.

JUANITA KREPS TO SPEAK, TEACH IN JANUARY

Former President Jimmy Carter's Cabinet member, Juanita Kreps, who was Secretary of Commerce, will be teaching various classes at Agnes Scott College in January on "Business Problems in the Economy of the 80's."

The Duke University professor will be visiting the campus under the sponsorship of the Hal L. and Julia T. Smith Chair of Free Enterprise in the Economics Department. The professorial chair was made possible through a gift from Mr. Smith, a Trustee Emeritus at Agnes Scott, and his wife, an Agnes Scott 1931 alumna.

Dr. Kreps will teach several classes to students on the state of the nation's economy and its future problems. In addition, she will hold a public lecture on January 9 and a panel discussion for the public on January 30, along with Jerry Jasinowski, chief economist for the National Association of Manufacturers, and Dr. William Freund, chief economist for the New York Stock Exchange.

Dr. Kreps is a former member of the Board of Directors of the New York Stock Exchange, is a former president of the American Association of Higher Education, has served on the Board of Directors of the National Merit Scholarship Corporation, and has spent most of her professional academic career at Duke University as a faculty member in economics and in administration.

She has authored several books, which include "Women and the American Economy," "Sex in the Marketplace: American Women at Work," and "Income and Retirement Problems of the Aged."

More than 120 seniors await their entrance into Presser Hall for the 1983 Investiture Ceremony on September 24. The capping ceremony, which has been held at Agnes Scott almost since its beginning, is taken from an English tradition. Agnes Scott is the only college in the United States known to practice investiture, which is a precursor of commencement exercises in June. Students are capped with an academic mortar board by Dean of the College Julia T. Gary who explained, "Putting on the mortar board is symbolic of coming into a new status with the responsibilities, obligations, as well as privileges, of being a senior."

Honors Day speaker Susan Phillips '67, left, chats with Agnes Scott librarian Judith Jensen after the day's ceremony was completed. Dr. Phillips is the first woman to be appointed to the Commodity Futures Trading Commission by President Reagan. She is also a University of Iowa professor who has written numerous articles on financial risk management and economic aspects of private pensions. About 125 students were honored for their academic achievement on Honors Day, which took place in September.

GLEE CLUB PERFORMS WINNING SONG

The Agnes Scott Glee Club performed the works of several Georgia composers whose work was chosen from a composition contest held last spring at the College. The fall concert was held in conjunction with the celebration of Georgia's 250th birthday.

John Corina, University of Georgia professor of music, won first place in the contest for his work, "As the Deer Longs for the Waterbrooks." Other winning works that were featured during the fall performance included Gail Pollock's "Georgia Land," and Michael Fauss and Paul Diamond's "Atlanta, You're My Home."

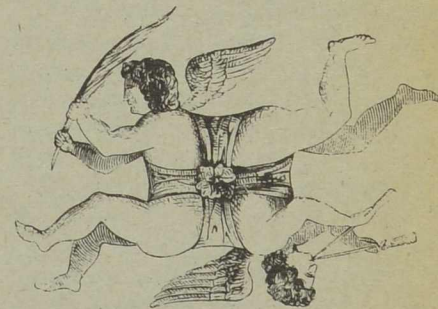

More than 40 composers submitted work in the contest, which stipulated that each contestant have an identifiable relationship to the state of Georgia.

"GOOD-BYE, GOD, I'M GOING TO COLLEGE!"

—Jean Sproat

Canon Chaplain for the Episcopal Diocese of Massachusetts and the first regularly-ordained woman in the Eastern Massachusetts diocese, Jeanne Sproat, spoke to Agnes Scott students during a three-day series on "Good-bye, God, I'm Going to College."

The informal talks focused on students entering college and examining old moral values while establishing new ones.

Ms. Sproat is responsible for assigning pastors to visit patients in the 12 major medical centers in Boston and providing housing for families of patients.

A field of education supervisor of seminarians for the Boston Theological Institute, Ms. Sproat is also a part-time lecturer at the Episcopal Divinity School in Cambridge, Mass., and a well-known speaker to Christian groups on women's issues in the church.

CLASS OF '87 FEATURES TOP STUDENTS

A diversity of students typifies the entering Class of '87 at Agnes Scott this fall, with minorities representing 11 percent of the class and students coming from five foreign countries. Five are daughters of alumnae.

Although most students are from the Southern region—namely Georgia—students come from New York, Michigan and Pennsylvania, and as far away as Turkey, Pakistan, Colombia, Malaysia and Denmark.

Although they came from different areas of the world, they had the same idea of choosing Agnes Scott because of its high academic reputation. The majority of these students ranked among the top 10 percent of their graduating high school class, with five being National Merit Scholars. The average Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT) scores for the class was 1087, which is 194 points above the national average.

Out of these 160 students, an increased enrollment over last year, most chose biology, English, political science and math as their majors with aspirations of careers in engineering (made possible through Agnes Scott's Dual Degree Program with Georgia Institute of Technology), law, medicine, business and communications.

FOUNDER'S CLUB AND LIMITED EDITION PRINTS FOR LEADERSHIP GIVING GROUPS ANNOUNCED

Agnes Scott announces a new giving club, the Founder's Club, and original prints as gifts to members of the leadership giving clubs.

The Founder's Club has been established in order to recognize those donors who have given $5,000 or more during the year and is so named because $5,000 was the amount needed and received from the community to establish the institution in 1889.

Limited edition serigraphs have been announced for membership in the four leadership gifts groups. Leland Staven, Associate Professor of Art and Curator of the Dalton Galleries, created pen and ink drawings of campus scenes. The scenes are printed on a high quality paper with a neutral pH factor; therefore, these works of art should not yellow with time and may be enjoyed for many years. Each print will be signed by the artist.

Century Club members, those who have given $100-$499, will receive a print of Agnes Scott Hall (Main Dormitory). Colonnade Club members, those who have given $500-$999, will receive prints of Agnes Scott Hall and Buttrick. Tower Circle members, those giving $1,000-$4,999, and Founder's Club members, those giving $5,000 or more, will receive a full set of prints, including Agnes Scott Hall, Buttrick, and the McCain Library. In addition, the charter members of the Founder's Club will be honored at a dinner in February.

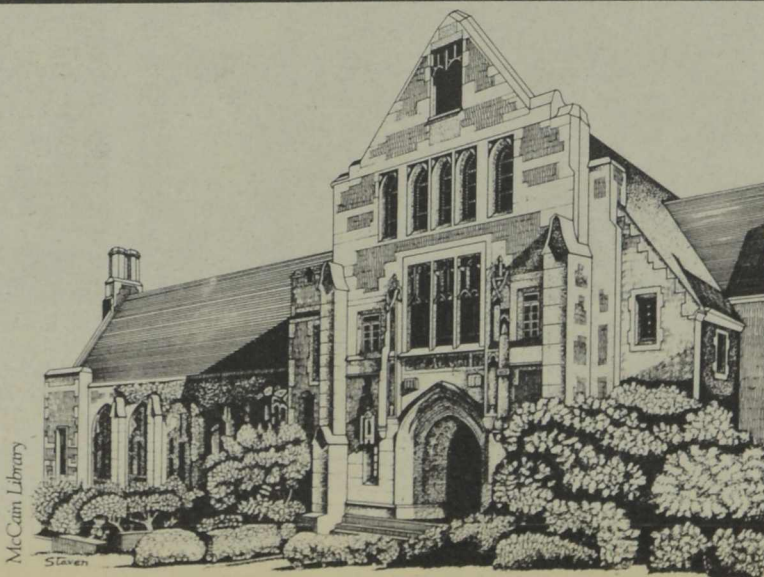

All prints will be mailed after June 30, 1984, to members who have joined the leadership giving clubs during the fiscal year.

AGNES SCOTT COLLEGE

One hundred thirty-eight junior and senior high school students from across the country were Agnes Scott students for two days during the College's annual OktoberQuest, held October 13-14.

The prospective students attended classes, stayed in the dorm, ate meals in the dining hall, met with faculty and administrators, and got to know Agnes Scott students. The two-day exploration of the campus gave high school students a taste of what they could expect should they choose Agnes Scott as their college.

STUDIO DANCE THEATRE AND DIXIE DARLINGS CAPTIVATE ATLANTA AUDIENCES

What began with a performance heralding President Ruth Schmidt's inauguration last spring has become a popular item in the community this fall. The Agnes Scott clogging group, called the Dixie Darlings, who formed out of a College clogging class, has been such a hit with their dance routines that they were invited to perform in front of record-number crowds at the annual Yellow Daisy Festival at Stone Mountain in September and at the opening of the High Museum in Atlanta in October. Also in October, they performed at the Americana Health Center for Senior Citizens Week and for the "Great Scott!" festival.

Directed by Marylin Darling, dance director at Agnes Scott, the cloggers practice 30 hours a week before each performance. An intense workout of a three-minute routine is the equivalent of jogging three miles, according to Darling.

Dressed in red gingham skirts over petticoats, they emit a down-to-earth image which has appealed to a large audience.

Another successful dance group, also under the direction of Marylin Darling, is the Studio Dance Theatre. When she joined the faculty at Agnes Scott in 1971, Darling took the existing dance group and turned it into a well-known dance company with professional talent.

More than 25 students volunteer their time to work out in ballet and modern dance classes each week and to perform once or twice a quarter. This year, they were invited to perform at the High Museum's opening and will be dancing in the Metropolitan Atlanta Winter Dance Festival, sponsored by the Dance Coalition of Atlanta in February.

Darling said the group is most likely to be the only non-professional group out of more than 20 dance companies to perform at the festival. Many performances are choreographed by students.

During the summer, Cable DeKalb taped an interview with Darling about her research on the reviving folk dance forms in Georgia, which was accompanied by a dance sequence by Studio Dance Theatre. The program, called Southern Comfort, has been placed in the Cable DeKalb Archives and nominated for a cable program award.

Darling came to Agnes Scott with a master's degree in music with an emphasis in dance from Florida State University. She has studied with Martha Graham, Jose Limon, Alwin Nikolais, Alvin Ailey, Paul Taylor, and Marcel Marceau.

She has been nominated for the 1983-84 Governor's Awards in the arts for dance, which is an annual award presented to artists in Georgia who are outstanding in their fields.

CROSS COUNTRY TEAM STARTS

It's a brisk autumn morning—the time of day when most people desire to be sleeping in a warm bed—and several Agnes Scott students are pounding the streets. These students are part of a newly-formed cross country team which was started by Assistant Dean of the College, Gué Hudson, and secretary to the registrar, Marcia Mitchell, who are also runners.

During freshman registration, Dean Hudson noticed the number of students who were award-winning runners, so she formed a team of eight students who meet weekly to work on mileage and speed.

Already, the team has competed in the Bonnie Bell 10K race and the Georgia Intercollegiate Cross Country Championship in October. In the latter race, one of the members, Amy Bailey '87, won a medal for placing within the first 25 runners to finish. The team will be competing throughout the year in various races and they hope to earn more awards.

Faculty Notes

DAVID BEHAN, Associate Professor of Philosophy, presented the paper, "Hume's Labyrinth," at the Twelfth Hume Conference at Concordia University in Montreal, Canada, in August.

GUNTHER BICKNESE, Professor of German, served as tour guide and trip manager for the 1983 summer alumnae trip to six central European cities, including Munich, Salzburg, Vienna, Prague, Berlin, and Nurnberg. He also directed the Agnes Scott Summer Study at the University of Marburg, Germany, a seven-week program of study and field trips.

SANDRA BOWDEN, Professor of Biology, has been appointed chair of the Meritorious Teaching Award

Committee and to the Executive Committee of the Association of Southeastern Biologists. The A.S.B. is the major regional professional organization of biologists from 16 Southeastern states.

JACK BROOKING, Annie Louise Harrison Waterman Professor of Theatre, performed the role of The Director in Jitters by David French at the Atlanta Unitarian Church in November. After spending four weeks this summer in Greece, Crete, and Tunisia, Dr. Brooking wrote a series of short stories and sketches based on the areas and the experiences.

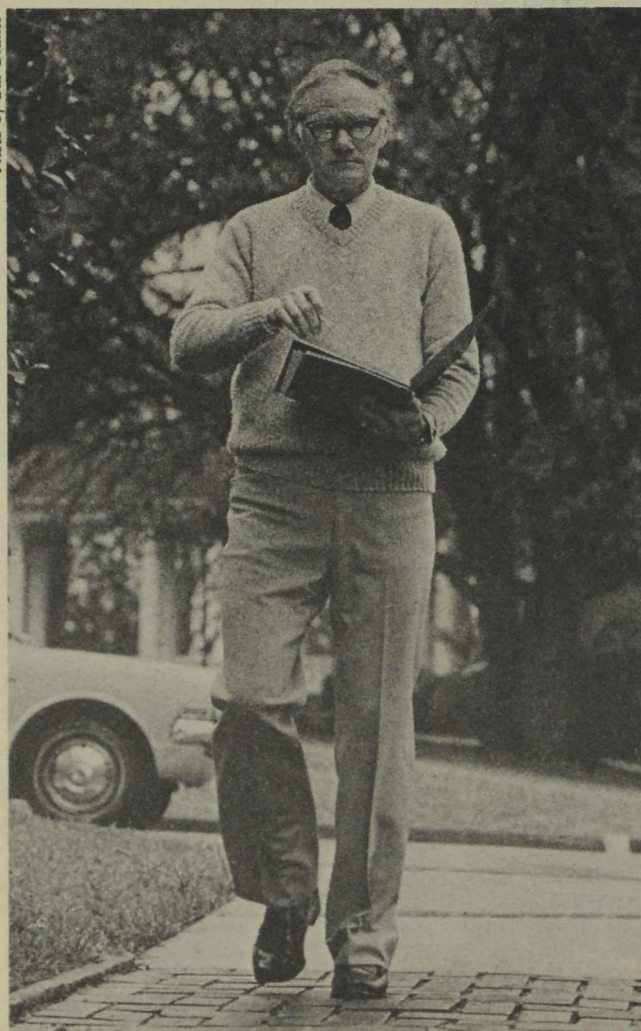

MICHAEL BROWN, Charles A. Dana Professor of History, taught Elizabethan Social History in England this summer to 17 students. During five and a half weeks of study and travel, the group was based in Exeter, Oxford, York, Edinburgh, and London. Dr. Brown's review of Mary Dewar, editor, De Republica Anglorum by Sir Thomas Smith was published in the summer issue of Albion, a journal of the North American Conference on British Studies.

Feminine Principle in Clay," in May, and he and LELAND STAVEN, Associate Professor of Art and Curator of the Dalton Galleries, had an exhibition of their work at the Etowah Creative Arts Council Gallery in Cartersville, Georgia, in October and November.

PENELOPE CAMPBELL, Professor of History, studied in China and Japan for eight weeks during the summer in conjunction with a New York University Asian Studies program.

M. ELOISE BROWN CARTER, Assistant Professor of Biology, presented a paper at the national meeting of the American Institute of Biological Sciences at the University of North Dakota in August. The paper, "Character Displacement in Talinum mengesii," was presented in a session sponsored by the Ecological Society of America and the Botanical Society of America. Prior to the meeting, Dr. Carter and SANDRA BOWDEN, Professor of Biology, attended a workshop on Computers in Biology Education.

CAROLINE DILLMAN, Assistant Professor of Sociology and Anthropology, received an Agnes Scott Summer Research Fellowship for work on a book on Southern women. She presented a paper, "Researching Feminism in the American South: A Matter of Media-Influenced Perspectives and Perceptions," at the XIth International Congress of Anthropological and Ethnological Sciences, in Vancouver, British Columbia, in August. Dr. Dillman gave a talk, "Genealogical Reminiscences of a Confederate Captain's Great-Granddaughter," for the Atlanta chapter of the United Daughters of the Confederacy in September.

PAUL GARBER, Professor of Bible and Religion, Emeritus, was an official participant in the Sixth World Council of Churches Assembly in Vancouver, British Columbia, in July and August.

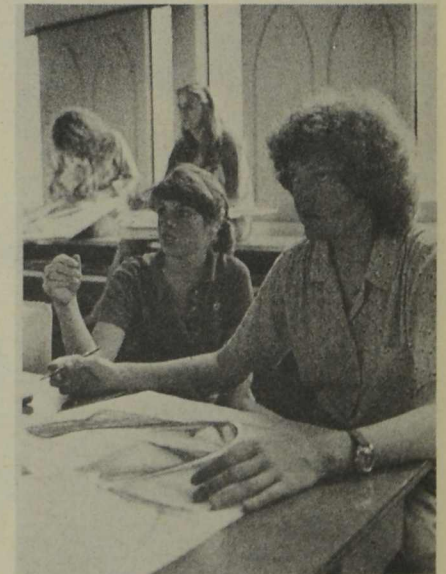

CONNIE JONES, Associate Professor of Sociology, received a Faculty Research Grant from Agnes Scott for this summer to continue her research in Hindu movements in America. She surveyed collections in Chicago, Berkeley, San Francisco, and Los Angeles and visited several ashrams and international centers of Hinduism in these places. She organized and chaired a session at the annual meeting of the Society for the Scientific Study of Religion in Knoxville entitled "Comparative Studies on Women and Religion: Texts and Realities" in November.

KATHARINE KENNEDY, Assistant Professor of History, read a paper entitled "Marching on the Playground: Military Preparation in German Primary Schools, 1871-1914" at the joint meeting of the History of Education Society (USA) and the Canadian History of Education Association, held in Vancouver, British Columbia, in October. The paper was based in part on research conducted this summer in West Germany with funding from a research grant awarded through Agnes Scott's Professional Development Committee.

NANCY MANSON, Assistant Professor of Biology, presented a paper, "Hydrogen Peroxide and Hydroxyl Radical Mediation of Activated Leukocyte Depression of Cardiac Sarcoplasmic Reticulum: Participation of the Cyclooxygenase Pathway." The paper was based on her postdoctoral research and research performed this summer at the Medical College of Virginia in collaboration with Dr. Michael Hess and was presented in September at the International Congress of Myocardial Research in Hilton Head, South Carolina.

RAYMOND MARTIN, Professor of Music and College Organist, was honored by the Lutheran Church of the Redeemer in September for his twenty years of service as organist there. He was presented with gifts from the choir and congregation, and, as a surprise, the church announced the establishment of the Raymond J. Martin Organ Fund for any necessary repairs to insure the instrument is always in excellent condition. Dr. Martin is Agnes Scott's senior member of the teaching faculty with 34 years of service.

TERRY S. McGEHEE, Assistant

Terry McGehee (r.)

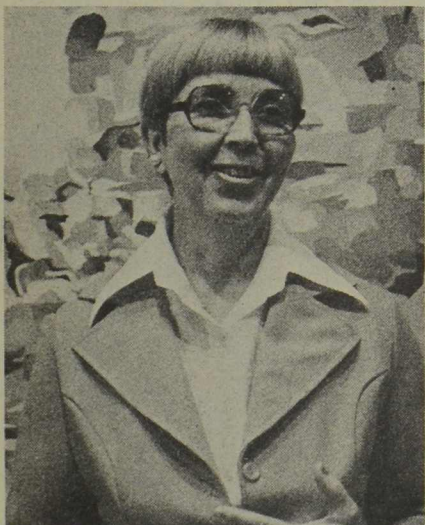

Professor of Art, was on Sabbatical last year. During that time she spent three weeks trekking in the Annapurna region of the Himalayas in Nepal and a week in Paris on the way back visiting galleries and museums. In April she showed at the Carol Loewenstein Gallery in Houston in a group exhibit and in March at the Fourth Biennial Paper and Clay Exhibition at Memphis State University. The rest of the year she spent working on her pastel drawings and paintings.

LOIS OVERBECK, Assistant Professor of English, was chair of a special session, "Modern Drama: Text and Performance," at the South Atlantic Modern Language Association meeting in Atlanta in October. LUIS PENA, Assistant Professor of Spanish, has had "Escritura del espacio y espacio de la escritura: El perro de la escribana" published in Mexico in Plural, Vol. XII, No. 136 and "Escritura del paisaje y paisaje de la escritura; Rulfo y Fuentes" in Spain in El paisaje en la literatura hispánica (Madrid: Cuadernos Aldeu), Vol. I, Nos. 2-3, both this year. He presented his papers, "La metamorfosis del deseo: una aproximación al teatro mexicano de la última década," at the international meeting of the Latin American Studies Association in September in Mexico City; "El perfil de la mirada: el rol del lector en la conformación textual de El hipogeo secreto" and "The Image of Multinationals in Mexican Literature" at the 38th annual meeting of the Rocky Mountain Modern Language Association in Glendale, Arizona, in October; "La discreta memoria: la revolución mexicana y su inscripción en la historieta" at the Second Conference on Popular Culture in Latin America in Las Cruces, New Mexico, in November.

MARIE HUPER PEPE, Charles A. Dana Professor of Art, received an Agnes Scott Faculty Summer

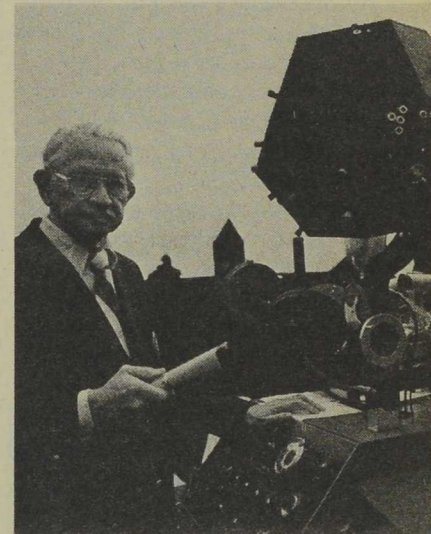

Research Grant to prepare two courses: The Woman as Artist from the Renaissance through the 19th Century and Greek and Roman Art and Architecture. Dr. Pepe read a paper, "The Development of the Buddhist Temple in Siam and the Climax of the Siamese Style as Seen in the Temple of the Dawn at Tonburi and the Grand Palace in Bangkok," in October at the Southeastern College Art Conference in Chattanooga.

COLLEGE ORGANIST HONORED. In October, Professor of Music and College Organist Raymond Martin gave his annual concert on campus and performed works by Vieme, Franck, and Bach, among others. He was honored in September by his church, Lutheran Church of the Redeemer, for his 20 years of service there.

JULIUS STAAL, Director of the Planetarium, Bradley Observatory, has translated the two-volume book, Uranographie Chinoise, into English and extracted information from it to publish his Stars of Jade, to be released in December.

NAI-CHUANG YANG, Assistant Professor of Chemistry, originated the idea of and collaborated with F.H. Hsu on the paper, "Positron Annihilation Studies of Activation Effects of Substituents on Naphthalene Derivatives," which was presented at the annual meeting of Material Research Society in Boston in November. Also in November Dr. Yang presented the paper, "Synthesis of 4-Substituted N-(3-Dimethylaminopropyl)-1, 8-Naphthalimides" at the 35th American Chemical Society Southeast Regional Meeting in Charlotte. Two students, Julie Ketchersid '83 and Mary MacKinnon '85, were involved in the laboratory work for this paper.

MARSHA NORMAN TO SPEAK

The 1983 Pulitzer Prize-winning playwright, Marsha Norman '69, who attended Agnes Scott College for three years, will be speaking about her career on April 10 at the College.

The petite, 35-year-old brunette wrote 'Night, Mother, which won her the award. The play is about a forlorn, overweight woman, despondent about her situation, who decides to commit suicide. She announces her decision to her shocked mother, and their dialogue unfolds what is behind the struggle of a person's decision to take her life.

Norman's sensitivity to emotionally hurt people derived from her experiences in working as a volunteer, while in college, in the burn unit at Grady Memorial Hospital, and later in the children's department at a mental facility near Louisville, Ky.

The latter experience influenced her to write the play, Getting Out.

She wrote numerous articles for a Louisville magazine and created The Jelly Bean Journal, a children's supplement to Louisville's newspaper. Some of her plays included: Third and Oak, The Laundromat, The Pool Room and The Holdup. She is now working on a book about a religious sect in Kentucky called The Shakers.

Self-described as a serious person, she majored in philosophy at Agnes Scott. In a recent Saturday Review magazine article, she attributes her philosophical influence to Merle Walker, former professor and chairman of the philosophy department at ASC.

Her plays reveal her belief that people have the right to make their own decision about their lives, even if, as in her play 'Night, Mother, they decide to end it.

World-renowned concert pianist Garrick Ohlsson gave the first performance of the Kirk Concert Series for the 1983-84 season at Agnes Scott. Ohlsson performed during a rainy fall evening for an overwhelmed audience. He gave two encores and received a standing ovation. Also in the concert series will be Christopher Parkening, classical guitarist, performing at Agnes Scott on January 31 and the Guarneri String Quartet, returning for the ninth season at the College on April 24.

The Agnes Scott theatre group, Blackfriars, presented this fall the colorful, updated-for-the-eighties version of "Godspell," a lively musical portraying the life of Christ, according to the book of Matthew. The new version was placed in an athletic setting to emphasize the need for "spiritual fitness" in a society where physical fitness is often stressed.

On June 5, 1984, a group of Agnes Scott students, alumnae and friends will depart from Atlanta for a 16-day tour of Greece. The tour will be conducted by Dr. Richard D. Parry, Professor of Philosophy at Agnes Scott, who has toured most of the sites the group will visit. The cost is a modest $1,679, which includes air fare, ground transport and admission to all sites, two meals a day, and twin-bedded rooms with bath.

Arriving in Athens on June 6 after an intermediate stop in Amsterdam, the group will visit the Acropolis; the Agora; Plaka, oldest part of modern Athens; the National Archaeological Museum; and the Roman Agora, with free time to enjoy a play, the sound and light show at the Acropolis, or other events.

After lunch in Athens on June 9, the group departs for Delphi and the temple of Apollo. From Delphi the tour visits the extensive and relatively undisturbed ruins of ancient Corinth on June 12, and from Corinth the group goes to Mycenae to visit the ancient walled city and underground tombs.

From June 14 to June 18 the group tours Nauplia, first capital of modern Greece; Epidauros, known for its almost perfectly preserved theater and the ruins of the temple of Asklepios; and Aigina, whose major archaeological site is the temple of Aphaia, 2,500 years old. Next the group returns to Athens on June 18 for the final full day in Greece, which will include a trip to Cape Sounion to visit the temple of Poseidon.

On June 19 the group flies to Amsterdam to spend the remainder of the day and the night. The group returns to Atlanta June 20.

Dr. Parry will suggest selected readings before the trip to ensure each traveler's familiarity with Greece's history, and a Greek-speaking guide will accompany the group.

To enroll in the trip, a $100 refundable deposit should be sent to Dr. Parry by January 15. The balance of $1,579 is due by April 20, 1984.

ASC's OLDEST ALUMNA, ANNIE WILEY PRESTON, 104, DIES AT HOME IN DECATUR OCTOBER 31

Annie Shannon Wiley Preston, who was Agnes Scott's oldest known living alumna, died October 31, a little over two months before her birthday on January 15, which would have made her 105 years old.

During the long span of her life, she lived in Korea, visited Europe and China, witnessed the coronation of King Edward in England, and saw her family grow to the size of six children, 21 grandchildren, and 21 great-grandchildren.

Mrs. Preston could boast that three generations of her family attended Agnes Scott. All three of her daughters were graduated from here, and three of four granddaughters who attended Agnes Scott were graduated.

She is remembered for her involvement in the College, as a member of the Decatur Alumnae Club and for her attendance at several Alumnae Leadership Conferences and Alumnae Weekends. Last April she was one of the honored guests as the oldest living alumna at the Fifty Year Club annual dinner. She attended Agnes Scott from 1895 to 1897 and along with a few other students created the College's first yearbook.

"Annie Wiley Preston was one of Agnes Scott's most loyal and supportive alumnae. She was proud that her daughters and granddaughters are alumnae also," said Dr. Paul McCain, Assistant to the President for Planned Giving, who not only knew her from Agnes Scott but was also in her Sunday school class at Decatur Presbyterian Church. "The members of the Covenant Class (at her church) will always remember her apt illustrations and incisive comments during the discussions of each session until 1982 when she had too much difficulty climbing the stairs."

Her insight into religious discussions was probably a result of having worked as a Presbyterian missionary with her husband, the Reverend John Fairman Preston, in Korea for 37 years. There he founded Soongil Boys School and she taught at a private girls school.

Director of Alumnae Affairs Virginia Brown McKenzie described Mrs. Preston's life as one "of service as a teacher and missionary. In her later years, her daughter, Shannon P. Cumming '30, lived the life of service, seeing that Mrs. Preston was taken to all her Agnes Scott alumnae activities. We are grateful to Mrs. Preston for her many years of devotion to Agnes Scott, which were reflected in her gifts to the College and in her interest in alumnae affairs."

MARGARET MITCHELL HODGES SCHOLARSHIP NAMED FOR RTC's

Energetic...intense...a beautiful laugh... a love for life...vibrant...insightful...a whirlwind...a sparkler...a great concern for others...a tremendous faith in God...

Her name was Margaret Mitchell Hodges and her life made such an impact on others that her death last spring prompted an overwhelming response to establish a fund at Agnes Scott in her memory.

Margaret Shirley and Susan Little, Return to College classmates of Mrs. Hodges, and Ayse Carden, assistant professor of psychology, Mrs. Hodges' major, spearheaded the effort to raise money for the fund. Family, friends, relatives, classmates and the Agnes Scott psychology department contributed to the fund which will provide financial assistance for Return to College students.

"We cared for her so much. This was our way of showing it," said Dr. Carden.

The Margaret Mitchell Hodges Scholarship Fund will assist women, over the normal college age, who have returned to college to earn a degree. Mrs. Hodges was one such student.

She dropped out of college when she was a sophomore to marry. She raised three daughters and established her own business as a skilled seamstress and interior decorator out of her home. In addition to family life and her business, she took tap dancing lessons and participated in the bell choir at her church. But there was still something she had not done—earn a college degree. So for personal satisfaction more than anything else, she enrolled at Agnes Scott in 1978 to pursue a degree in psychology. She was on the Honor Roll in 1980, while she stayed involved in her business and other activities.

Soon after graduation in 1981, she discovered that she had cancer, and for almost two years she fought the illness until her death on May 16, 1983.

Margaret's husband Don, in addition to helping establish the fund, presented the psychology department with a plaque of a Return to College program advertisement which featured her.

Additional contributions may be made to the Margaret Mitchell Hodges Scholarship Fund to help Return to College students who have financial needs. Contributions should be sent to the Office of Development, Agnes Scott College, Decatur, Georgia 30030.

...Because her life showed such care and concern for others, the fund is an appropriate way of memorializing her.

COLLEGE HONORS JOHN O. FLINT ON HIS 100th BIRTHDAY

The birthday of a 100-year-old man was a cause for celebration at Agnes Scott College October 1. About 300 guests, including family, friends, and many of those who knew him during the 60 years he worked at Agnes

Scott, gathered to pay tribute to John O. Flint.

Mr. Flint came to Agnes Scott in 1910, starting as janitor and working his way up to head waiter of the dining hall and head of cafeteria personnel. He was best known as the bell ringer, notifying students it was time for a meal.

His artisan talents were utilized in designing intricate moldings in Rebekah Hall. He painted interiors and dug foundations for several campus buildings. Students loved his involvement in student life; he collected logs from the woods for their fall bonfires and helped decorate for their parties.

He worked under the leadership of the first four presidents, but finally retired before the current president, Ruth Schmidt, took office. Marvin B. Perry, Jr., and Wallace M. Alston, two former presidents along with Ruth Schmidt were there at the party to give special greetings to Mr. Flint.

Banquet tables in the Rebekah Reception Room displayed a variety of hors d'oeuvres and a three-layer chocolate cake. The College presented him with a captain's chair, inscribed with the College seal, and he received proclamations from local officials, as well as from President Ronald Reagan.

JOHN O. FLINT CELEBRATES 100th BIRTHDAY. At his 100th birthday party on campus, Mr. Flint thanks President Ruth Schmidt for the captain's chair from the College. He is surrounded by his daughter Missouri, his brother Ernest, Director of Public Affairs Sara A. Fountain, and an unidentified friend. ON THE EVE OF HIS RETIREMENT, DR. PAUL MCCAIN REMINISCES ABOUT HIS YEARS AT AGNES SCOTT

"Growing up at Agnes Scott was like having windows open to the wide world," says Dr. Paul M. McCain, special assistant to the president for planned giving and son of late Agnes Scott president Dr. James Ross McCain.

Paul McCain retires from his post June 30, but he plans to continue his work as a development and stewardship consultant part-time. His years at Agnes Scott College have been rich, he says. As a child, he remembers hearing Admiral Richard Byrd talk about his exploration of Antarctica; he remembers Edna St. Vincent Millay and W.H. Auden, Carl Sandburg and Robert Frost, and he recalls his sense of awe at all the books in the Agnes Scott library.

The six McCain children were very much a part of life on the campus. "Paul McCain served as mascot for the Class of 1924," recalls Frances Gilliland Stukes '24, a well-known alumna. "He was the cutest thing — a darling little boy with yellow curls," she says to the embarrassment of Dr. McCain, now balding.

Dr. McCain loved sports events at the College and avidly followed the careers of his favorite hockey and soccer players. "Once a year the students played the faculty," he recalls, "and when they did, Father played for all he was worth."

He loved Little Girls' Day, Black

Cat, May Day, and the annual book burning, when students burned the textbooks of the classes they liked least. The highlight of the school year for young Paul was Halloween. The McCain children were forbidden to have birthday parties — President McCain disapproved of summoning guests to bring one a present — but every year the family gave a Halloween party for the freshman Sunday school class. Paul has vivid

No college can stay just as it is. Either it is going forward or falling behind. Constant reevaluation and renewal are demanded in order to enhance the essence of what we value most.

Perhaps it is easiest to see the imperative of renewal in the area of physical facilities. Anyone who takes even a superficial look at our three oldest dormitories or despairs of regulating the heat emanating from our outmoded steam plant knows something of the need for renovation on the campus.

Our campus architects are developing a comprehensive plan for a campus worthy of being our centennial campus in 1989. It will be one which is energy efficient, even more beautiful, and which will provide expanded facilities for social and recreational activities.

Even the solid financial base of an institution as richly endowed as Agnes Scott College is not sufficient in today's economy. Thus, the Trustees approved a substantial increase in tuition and fees for next year. We shall still meet the financial needs of all students who cannot pay the full charges.

Not quite as obvious as the noisy plumbing and too much heat is that the liberal arts curriculum also must be under constant revision to do justice to the new knowledge constantly being discovered and to utilize technology in teaching.

Our academic computer center in McCain Library is one concrete example of changes in both the mode and materials of instruction. In addition, as our Founder's Day speaker pointed out, the scope of liberal arts has been expanded dramatically in the last fifteen years as scholars and teachers have seen the necessity of including the experience of all human beings in the curriculum. An expanded, inclusive curriculum will draw on the experience of women and of other cultures and will help us see the world from many perspectives, including those of the powerless in our society and world. Such an undertaking makes all of us who have devoted our lives to the liberal arts aware that we are only beginners in our search for the whole truth.

It is exciting to be a part of the ongoing process of evaluation and renewal. We count on all of you in the Agnes Scott family to be involved.

Lee A. Barclay has spent most of his life in college. Vice president for business affairs at Agnes Scott, Mr. Barclay will retire in June after working at Agnes Scott for seven years. His career in business at other higher educational institutions spans forty-six years.

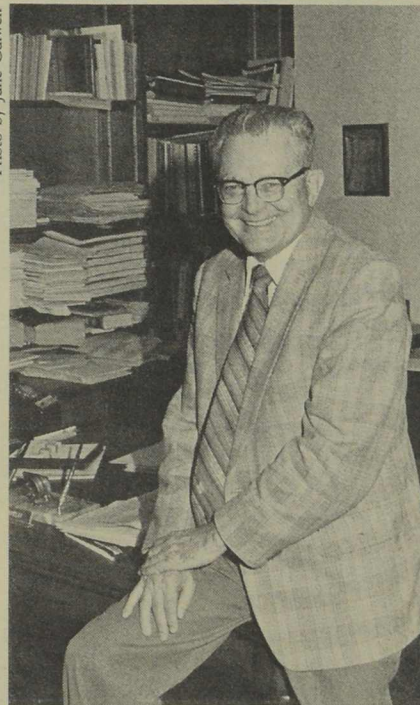

Mr. Barclay came to Agnes Scott from the University of Montevallo in Montevallo, Ala., where he was treasurer and business manager with the university for twenty-six years. As vice president for business affairs at Agnes Scott, Mr. Barclay supervised five departments and managed purchasing and short-term investments for the College.

"Lee Barclay has been particularly successful in the short-term investment of college funds. By making the most of high interest rates in recent years, he has produced additional income for Agnes Scott from which all of us have benefited," said President Ruth Schmidt upon Mr. Barclay's announcement that he would retire.

KREPS GIVES MORE THAN ECONOMICS VIEWS

When a well-known economist who has accomplished much in her career visits a college campus, students expect to hear her views on the economy and to receive advice on how to achieve in the business world. But when former Secretary of Commerce Juanita Kreps came to Agnes Scott in January, students got much more than an economics lecture.

Dr. Kreps, professor of economics at Duke University and a cabinet member in the Carter administration, lectured each Monday during January. Her theme, "Business Problems and the Economy of the '80s," covered such topics as the state of the economy, deregulation, business ethics, and the professional woman. Her visit was sponsored by the Hal L. and Julia T. Smith Chair of Free Enterprise in the Department of Economics.

Dr. Kreps's appointment as the first female secretary of commerce topped a long list of firsts in her career: the first woman to earn a doctorate in economics at Duke, the first woman on the Duke faculty, the first woman to become full professor there, and later, Duke's first female vice president.

Besides her professional positions, Dr. Kreps has been a director on the board of the New York Stock Exchange, president of the American Association of Higher Education, and a director of the board of the National Merit Scholarship Corporation. She has also written several books.

But at Agnes Scott, she focused her attention on the students. As they clustered around her during lunch, she listened to their career and personal goals.

"More than her lectures, I was impressed that I could interact with someone who had done so much, who could give me practical and realistic advice on balancing my career with having a family," says economics student Celia Shackleford '84.

"She was warm and empathetic — always reaching out to others," said Associate Professor of Economics began by accident, he claims. When he was teaching accounting and economics and working on his doctoral degree in banking at the University of North Carolina, he was offered a job at Montevallo.

After going to Montevallo — then a women's college called Alabama College — he saw the institution change to coeducation. "Within two years after the institution went coed," he said, "the women abdicated their leadership roles in virtually every organization on campus. The potential for women to develop leadership and abilities is so much greater at a women's institution," he noted.

"So, I have always been firmly committed to the education of women at a women's college," he adds, "and Agnes Scott is certainly a great institution."

On retirement, Mr. Barclay plans to travel, polish his golf game and paint landscapes. He and his wife, Bess, will move back to their home in Montevallo, where their children and grandchildren live.

William Weber. "I got the impression that our students felt they could talk to her about anything. Her candid assessments about the difficulty of balancing a career and family were realistic, and the students needed to hear that," he said. "Dr. Kreps told the students the things she had to sacrifice to have a family and career. In her situation, she dropped out of her career for ten years to rear a family."

The mother of two, she seemed to have no regrets about stopping her career for a time. Dr. Kreps told students that if a woman drops out of a career for ten years when she is thirty, she will still have twenty-five more years in the job market when she reenters at forty.

Dr. Kreps also warned students that the business world expects more of young women entering the market today, compared to her experience years ago when she was applauded as atypical of women at that time.

"She's an economist out of the mold," Dr. Weber said. "The humane texture of life obviously influences her perception of reality. She has an empathetic point of view from a moral aspect. Most economists are objective, where she is subjective in the way she draws conclusions."

Ms. Shackleford added, "Dr. Kreps thought about the human aspect — how economic policies affected people. She didn't just concentrate on theories."

COLLEGE HONORS MAJOR DONORS FOR SCIENCE HALL RENOVATION

To celebrate the completion of the three-million-dollar renovation of Campbell Science Hall and to thank contributors who gave three thousand dollars or more to the project, the Board of Trustees gave a "Sponsors of the Sciences" dinner.

The January evening included a reception, tours of the science hall, dinner, and a lecture on genetic research by Wyatt Anderson, chair of the Department of Molecular and Population Genetics at the University of Georgia.

Donors of three thousand to ten thousand dollars will have their names inscribed on a plaque in the science hall foyer. To honor donors of ten thousand dollars or more, the College placed plaques on designated classrooms and laboratories throughout the building.

COMMENCEMENT WEEKEND EVENTS SCHEDULED

Seniors will say good-bye to classmates and professors while Dean of the College Julia T. Gary will participate in her last College service at Agnes Scott when they attend the Baccalaureate Vespers June 2 and Commencement Exercises June 3.

A reception for faculty, staff, seniors, and their guests will be held in Main Quadrangle from 3:30-4:30 p.m. before the Baccalaureate Vespers at 5 p.m. in Presser Hall.

On Sunday, June 3, Commencement Exercises will begin at 9:30 a.m. on Presser Quadrangle and will be followed by a brunch on Main Quadrangle.

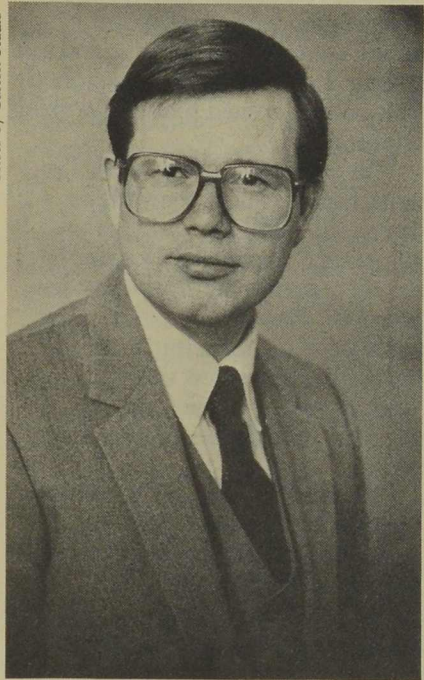

GERALD WHITTINGTON NAMED NEW BUSINESS VP

Gerald O. Whittington has been named vice president for business affairs at Agnes Scott College. He Scott from the University of Virginia where he was the university bursar. As vice president of business affairs, he is the chief business and financial officer of the College. In addition to overseeing various departments, he will be responsible for controlling the College budget and making purchases and investments for the College.

Prior to his position at the University of Virginia, Whittington worked his way up to business manager of the physical plant at Duke University. He has received numerous certificates in such areas as cash management, accounting, and loan administration from the National Association of College and University Business Officers and has been the NACUBO/U.S. Steel Cost Reduction Award winner as well.

He received his bachelor's degree in English from the University of North Carolina and his master's degree in management from Duke University. Whittington and his wife, Carol, are both professional singers. They will live in Decatur with their two sons.

succeeds Lee A. Barclay, who retires in June.

REMEMBER ASC IN YOUR WILL

The people and institutions named in a will usually indicate the writer's priorities. After providing for one's family, a person will likely include only the causes which have significantly influenced his or her life.

We hope that Agnes Scott's influence on you has been great enough for you to include the College in your will. If you would like further information about ways you can help Agnes Scott and, at the same time, benefit yourself, please write Paul M. McCain, Office of Development, Agnes Scott College, Decatur, GA 30030 or call 404/373-2571.

COLLEGE RAISES 1984-85 FEES

Tuition for the 1984-85 academic year will increase from $5,500 to $6,500 — the largest tuition hike in the College's history — to cover operating expenses. Room and board will increase from $2,250 to $2,700, and the student activity fee will increase from $75 to $90.

In a letter to parents, President Ruth Schmidt wrote, "Agnes Scott continues to offer one of the best educational values available in this country. Our fees are less than those of any women's college of comparable stature. We have been able to keep our charges remarkably low because of our endowment and the generosity of alumnae and friends. However, endowment income is not keeping pace with the costs of higher education today...."

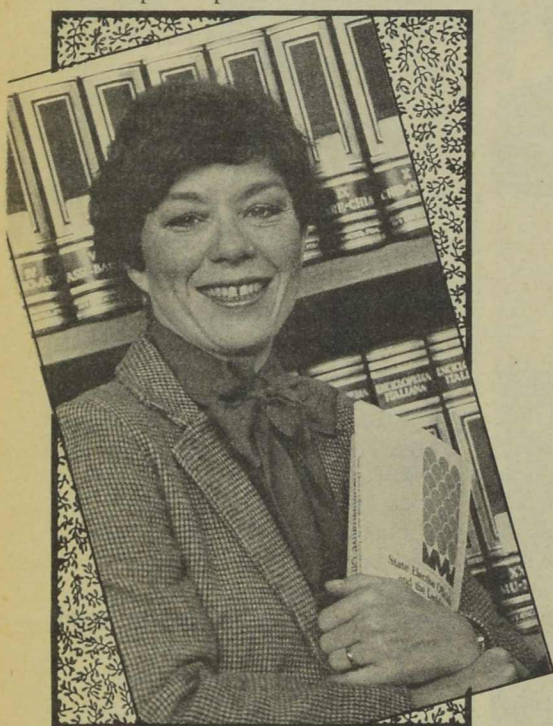

"The financial aid budget will be increased significantly for 1984-85, and the College will continue to make every effort to meet the full financial need of students. For financial aid students, the increased costs will be borne by a combination of higher grants to students, slightly increased work assignments and loans more in line with national limits."

The following is a comparison chart of tuition, room and board, and student activity fees for other women's colleges for the 1984-85 school year.

RTC DAY SET FOR MAY 17

Agnes Scott's nine-year-old Return to College Program is increasingly successful in attracting women beyond the traditional college age to the campus. Open to women who qualify for admission, whether they have had previous college experience or not, the RTC Program currently enrolls fifty-five to sixty women at Agnes Scott.

Return to College students enroll in the regular College courses and may take one course per quarter or a full load.

The College's next RTC visitation day is May 17. Prospective students begin the day with coffee and meet current RTC students. Prospective RTCs will attend class, meet with administrative officers, and tour the campus. Current RTCs will answer questions about their experiences at Agnes Scott and the problems they encountered in returning to college or coming for the first time.

According to Marilyn Mallory, director of the RTC Program, recent advertising for the RTC Program has drawn great response. An ad in a February Atlanta Journal-Constitution Sunday magazine section and several weekly newspapers generated about 100 responses.

Generous financial aid based on need is available to part-time and full-time students, chiefly through the Irene K. Woodruff Financial Aid Fund.

Ms. Mallory encourages anyone interested in RTC visitation day, May 17, to write her at Agnes Scott College, Decatur, GA 30030 or call her at 404/373-2571.

STUDENTS SPEND MONTH STUDYING IN SPAIN

When Agnes Scott student Jill Royce studied Spanish last fall break, she admits she had a poster image of the country — "women wearing mantillas over their heads and carrying a rose between their teeth."

But when Jill visited Madrid last December, she found a city with "historical assets, along with multitudes of modern buildings."

Although Jill has traveled Europe several times, this was her first trip to Spain. But because she spent a longer time there, she feels a special tie with this country she has gotten to know and come to love.

"Now when I read the newspaper, I look for articles about Madrid," she explains. "I'm more aware of the country and what's occurring there." Jill's experience resembles that of six other Agnes Scott students who traveled to Spain last December with Spanish professor Constance Shaw.

The students not only toured Madrid by themselves but lived with Spanish families, most of whom spoke no English. By the end of their month's stay, the students were thinking Spanish.

Not only did the trip polish their language skills, but it brought the country alive for them as they wandered through ornate cathedrals, colorful crowded marketplaces, palatial museums and lively nightclubs. On weekends, they crossed the countryside to out-of-the-way, fascinating places.

Besides touring the country, students Maria Gonzalez, Jill Royce, Amy Puckett, Amy Durand, Julie Custer, Ceil Shannon, and Andree Pike met with Dr. Shaw at her apartment each afternoon to share their experiences and to receive class lectures and homework assignments, which included the Madrid daily newspaper.

The five hours of college credit they earned during their stay was only one of the trip's benefits. For some of the students, it was the dream of a lifetime.

"Early in my Spanish courses, I began reading about the Alhambra in Granada — one of the most famous architectural examples in the world — and a year later, I was walking in the gardens and around the fountains," said Return to College Student Ceil Shannon. "It was a beautiful experience, and I'll never forget it. My husband could not believe it was such an emotional experience for me. But the people made a lasting impression, especially the children at Mass on Sundays."

"You're exposed to so much of the culture and the people that you have to come away with something," claims Julie Custer. "It's a growing experience, especially the responsibility of being on your own."

All the students found their experience brought reality to their studies. "Reading about a country is one thing, but to go there and partake of it as an individual, on a day-to-day basis, brings it to life," Ceil explains.

Maria Gonzalez adds, "Before I went to Spain, nothing I read or studied about the country had any tangibility to it. Now that I have seen the places and the people and the lifestyles that I studied, it has more substance. I now have more of an appreciation for what I study."

As the students explored the massive architectural structures and the beautiful museums, they noticed Spain's great appreciation of art.

"Their culture was at an advanced level when most of the rest of Europe was barbaric," Jill notes.

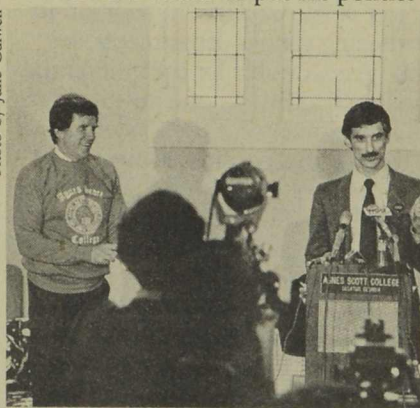

Maria pointed out that the Spanish are more politically active and aware than the Americans she knows. "I even saw children participate in an antinuclear demonstration while I was there."

"Spain has been a democracy only for the past few years," Jill explains. "I enjoyed getting a glimpse of the growing pains Spain is experiencing in going from a dictator to a democracy. I want to follow their politics now," she says.

They all admit that it's hard now to study Spanish without missing the place that captured their hearts last quarter. "Spain is not foreign to me anymore," Jill says. "The time I spent there was a powerful experience that became part of me. It could not be reproduced in any other way." And, of course, she adds, "I want to go back."

ASC PROFESSOR MANAGES HART'S GEORGIA CAMPAIGN

Steve Haworth, political science professor at Agnes Scott, finishes a lecture on comparative politics, then jumps in his car and drives to downtown Decatur to put his politics into practice. The downtown Decatur office was home to the Gary Hart presidential campaign in Georgia, where Haworth worked for the Georgia primary in March.

The state campaign manager for Hart, Haworth has always been active in political affairs. "I think the American political system is in real trouble and is being dominated by special interest groups," Haworth said. "You can say that in a classroom only so long before you realize you have to do something. I decided it was time to translate the ideas I had about politics into the political system."

Prior to his experience with the Hart campaign, Haworth worked as a deputy campaign manager for a state election, in Sen. Edward Kennedy's campaign for president, in Jimmy Carter's presidential campaign, in local Democratic campaigns, and as a pollster. But none of his background with politics excited him like working on this one.

"I'm exhausted, but thrilled. I've never had anything in my life as taxing and fulfilling outside of my job, except my family." Noting Hart's surprise victories during the first few primaries, Haworth remarked, "I've lost a lot of my cynicism about politics in the last few weeks. Working with the campaign has given me confidence in our political system."

Haworth's days ran from classes in the morning at Agnes Scott to working at the campaign office until the middle of the night. The campaign office resembled a newsroom on deadline as Haworth gave interviews, coordinated activities, and enlisted help while phones rang and visitors streamed in with questions.

Haworth noted that several Agnes Scott students got involved with the campaign, even during exam week. Encouraged by their enthusiasm, Haworth said the experience of working in a presidential campaign was worthwhile for the students — "They saw history being made, and there has never been anything in U.S. history like this campaign."

memories of opening tall tins of peppermints and nuts and bobbing for apples.

He remembers the College as being much more strict than it is today. His sister Louise couldn't cut across the campus to go to high school without putting on stockings, and College girls couldn't date without a chaperone. The rule against smoking was a constant source of contention. Dr. McCain remembers angry students carrying placards saying, "We want to smoke. McCain can go."

He was forbidden to take a job as a paper boy because the paper was delivered on Sundays. He was not even allowed to read the Sunday paper until Monday morning. As a boy he opted for a job delivering magazines, which he did until he went away to Erskine College at sixteen.

He also had a soft drink stand in the front yard of his home and sold cold drinks to the workers who were building Buttrick Hall. He put aside sixty cents a week, enough, he had been told at Sunday school, to feed a missionary for a month. He continues today his thrifty practices and is known on campus for being an inveterate coupon clipper. His family says of him, "He saves pennies so he can give dollars away."

Dr. McCain received his A.B. degree in history from Erskine College, where his grandfather taught English for fifty years. He taught English, history, and Bible at Darlington School in Rome for two years, and later he earned his M.A. and Ph.D. degrees from Duke University. A retired major in the Ordnance Corps Reserves, he served in the Army during World War II. Then for two years he taught military history at the U.S. Military Academy at West Point. After a teaching stint at Brenau College, he served as president of Arkansas College in Batesville from 1952 to 1969, when Dr. Wallace Alston brought him to Agnes Scott as vice president for development. He had known President Alston since his boyhood, when the two walked together to school — McCain to grammar school and Alston to Columbia Theological Seminary.

"He has done a steady, helpful, faithful job for the College," Dr. Alston says. "He developed prospects for capital funds in a quiet sort of way. I have a very high regard for him."

During Paul McCain's years at Agnes Scott, the College has received 16.8 million dollars in gifts, and five of the College buildings have been improved or renovated. Under his tenure, the College met a National Endowment for the Humanities challenge and raised one million dollars, half for library acquisitions and half for professional development of the faculty. Recently the College successfully concluded a three-million-dollar campaign for the renovation of the science building and the purchase of new scientific equipment with a challenge gift from the Kresge Foundation. Today, annual contributions to the College average a million dollars a year.

Professor of Psychology Lee Copple said Paul McCain's style is much like that of his father. "President McCain always said he had never begged a penny for Agnes Scott. He merely presented alumnae with the opportunity to give."

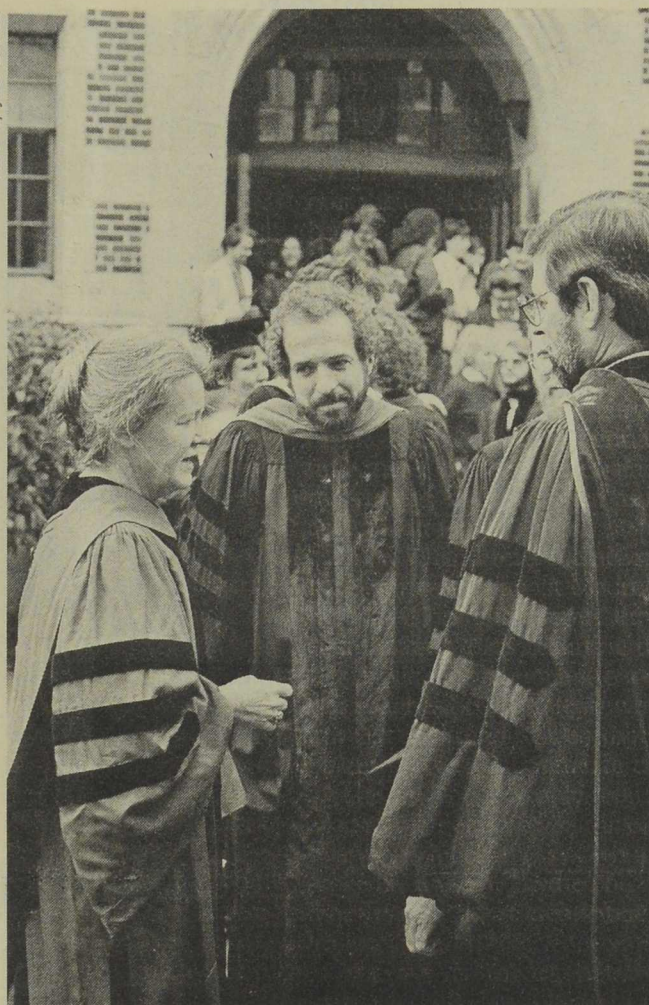

Dr. McCain says of his low-key approach to fund raising: "I try to let the alumnae know the vital part their gifts have in strengthening the College."

Paul McCain has been a member of the Arkansas Commission on the Arts and has served as chairman of the Presbyterian Advisory Council on Higher Education and the Committee on Theological Education for the Presbyterian Church, U.S. A trustee of the Georgia Rotary Student Program, he has sponsored a number of foreign students at Agnes Scott. He is also a trustee of the Protestant Radio and Television Center and an elder at Decatur Presbyterian Church. He is married to the former Dorothy Scott, and he has two children and one grandchild.

Known for his even disposition and gentlemanly charm, Dr. McCain has a simple philosophy which has served him well. "I never ask what I am getting out of life. I ask what I'm giving it."

Mr. Caulk was among many parents of sophomores who visited campus for Sophomore Parents Weekend, Feb. 17-19. Parents attended classes, watched slide shows, and were entertained with a skit by the sophomores. Ms. Caulk is treasurer of the sophomore class.

FOUNDER'S DAY

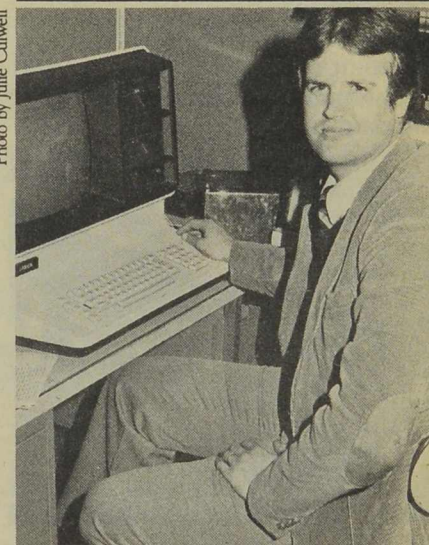

Margaret McIntosh, director of the Faculty Development Program, Center for Research on Women at Wellesley College in Massachusetts and pioneer in the women and scholarship movement, spoke at the Founder's Day ceremony celebrating the College's 95th birthday. In her talk, "Beyond Winning and Losing: Working for the Decent Survival of All," Ms. McIntosh spoke about society's attitude that a person must achieve and win to be of value.

"I would like for your generation to be able to develop more fully as human beings along the lines of your common sense, ... your ability to make and mend the social fabrics, and to develop also your thinking and feeling and intuiting qualities." She encouraged students to use their competitive, as well as collaborative potential, citing the need for people to work together, not against each other.

During her speech, she expressed a kinship with Agnes Scott because her mother, Margaret Hay, attended the College from 1919 to 1921.

THIES TO HEAD COMPUTING

Robert Thies has been named director of administrative computing at Agnes Scott College. As director he will determine the computing needs of various administrative offices to develop a common computer system for the College.

Thies comes to Agnes Scott from Augusta College, where he was assistant director of computing services and he handled both academic and administrative computing. He earned a bachelor of science degree in theoretical mathematics from Augusta College and is working on a master's degree in business administration at Georgia State University.

Faculty Notes

DAVID BEHAN, associate professor of philosophy, will present the paper, "Hume's Difficulties Concerning Personal Identity," at the Philosophy Colloquium, University of Georgia, on April 25.

PENELOPE CAMPBELL, professor of history, served on the national screening committee for Fulbright Africa awards in New York during December. She spoke at the Cobb County Delta Kappa Gamma's November meeting, participated in the Kellogg Foundation's Humanities and Agriculture Symposium at the University of Florida in January and spoke before a local meeting of the American Association of University Women in March.

M. ELOISE BROWN CARTER, assistant professor of biology, participated in the Visiting College Professor Day at Brookstone School, Columbus, Ga., on Feb. 5 and 6. She joined other science faculty in an evening discussion of preparation in the sciences for college-bound students and presented a lecture, "Carnivorous Plants: The Hunters and the Hunted," for three high school science classes at Brookstone.

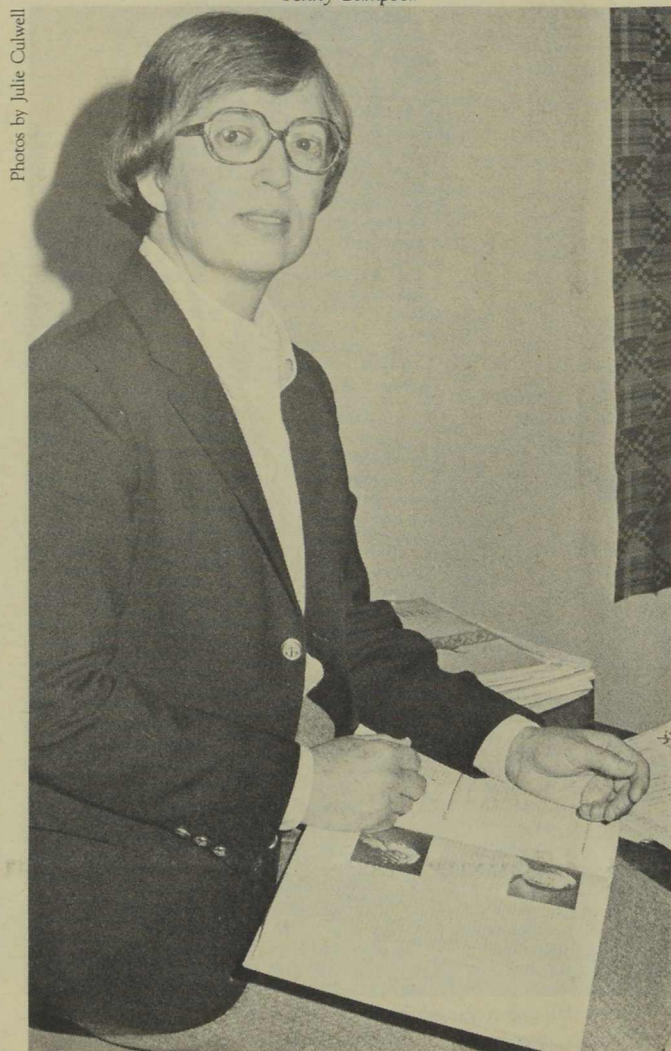

CAROLINE DILLMAN, assistant professor of sociology and anthropology, chaired a session, Student Symposium on Southern Women, at the meeting of the Mid-South Sociological Association in Birmingham in October. Three Agnes Scott students, Betsy Shaw '84, Tracey Veal '84 and Robyn Perry '84, presented papers for the session. Dr. Dillman was a discussant for the session, Sexual Scripts: The Faces of Femininity, at the same meeting. She has been appointed guest editor for a special issue on Southern women for the Sociological Spectrum, the official journal for the Mid-South Sociological Association.

Agnes Scott College will display its artistic talent during two art exhibits this spring. Art faculty members

Terry McGehee, Leland Staven, and Jay Bucek will show their works in paintings, prints, and pottery during an exhibit April 15 to May 17.

The senior art students will have a chance to show off their work at the Senior Art Exhibit, opening May 20 and continuing through June 3. A variety of work will be displayed. Both exhibits are free and will be held in the Dana Fine Arts Building.

Blackfriars, Agnes Scott's theatre troupe, will perform The House of Blue Leaves at 8:15 p.m. May 11, 12, 18 and 19 in the Dana Fine Arts Building. Call 377-1200 for ticket information after May 1.

The College's jazz vocal group, London Fog, will appear in concert May 16 at 8:15 p.m. in Presser Hall. The group will perform some twenty songs, including "Laura," "Somewhere over the Rainbow," "Tuxedo Junction," and "Little Pony." Jay Fuller, assistant professor of music, will perform "Preludes" by Gershwin during the program.

COLLEGE'S FIRST HONOR SCHOLARS GRADUATE

When Agnes Scott seniors crossed the Presser Quadrangle during commencement exercises this spring, twelve of the students receiving their diplomas were noted for excelling in academics while contributing to campus life.

This group of active, bright students is the College's first group of Honor Scholars. Out of the original sixteen, three transferred and one graduated a year early. The scholarship — based on merit, not financial need — pays $3,500 toward tuition each year for four years. Scholarship applicants are considered on the basis of high academic achievement and involvement in their high school activities.

The students chosen for this scholarship took part in extracurricular activities while keeping their grades high at Agnes Scott. Their formula — little sleep and constant work.

"The more you have to do, the more you get done," reflects honor scholar Tina Roberts.

Many of the twelve were leaders of campus groups which took time and commitment. But the women cited benefits to their hard work: learning to lead and to follow, how to work with people, time management, and efficiency.

"It's a waste of time to come here and only study," students commonly said.

Yet, with less time budgeted to studying, the dozen earned superlative grades. Most plan to attend graduate

The one hundred and twenty-five members of the Class of 1984 who received their diplomas the beautiful morning of June 3 will be going out to join the host of alumnae who have had the experience of an outstanding liberal arts education. What follows is taken from my words to the seniors on that occasion:

I particularly enjoy the reunions of the older classes of alumnae each spring. Seeing women return to Agnes Scott thirty-five, fifty, or even seventy years since their graduation from this college allows us to glimpse what the Agnes Scott experience has meant to generations of women who have learned and matured here. Oh, they certainly remember escapades in Main or Rebekah, prolonged good-byes to their dates on the colonnade, anecdotes about Dr. Gaines or Dr. McCain, but there is something deeper than this as well. Learning how to live, being freed for life, that's what these alumnae celebrate about their experience here.

We were privileged in April to welcome back to Agnes Scott Linda Miller Summer of the Class of 1914 for her seventieth anniversary of graduation from this college. It could not be called a reunion of the Class of 1914, for Mrs. Summer was the only one of her classmates able to come. But her keen mind, her expansive and gentle spirit, and her deep love for God and for this college were movingly communicated to us as she stood with her rolling walker in front of her at the front of Gaines Auditorium, reciting poetry from memory and offering a benediction for her beloved Agnes Scott College. We who heard it will never be the same. It is this kind of quality of life portrayed before us by one of our graduates which gives us a sense of humility in recognizing that the work of any one person in an institution is only a small portion of the collective experience and of the contributions of this college to the lives of women.

We at Agnes Scott share a commitment to the liberal arts, to the education of women, and to the ongoing exploration of what that commitment means in this uncertain year of 1984, just five years from our centennial celebration.

ALUMNA NAMED NEW DEAN OF COLLEGE

Agnes Scott College has chosen one of its own to be dean of the College. Ellen Wood Hall '67 is the first alumna to be named academic dean here. She leaves her position as presidential associate for corporate and foundation relationships and associate professor of French at Westminster College in New Wilmington, Pennsylvania.

"The dean of the College is the chief academic officer at Agnes Scott," said President Ruth Schmidt. "Ellen Hall brings to this important post experience as a teacher, a scholar, and an administrator. It is, of course, particularly meaningful that she has the distinct qualification of being an Agnes Scott alumna."

Dean Hall received her B.A. in French literature at Agnes Scott and her M.A. and Ph.D. degrees in French literature from Bryn Mawr College. A faculty member of Westminster since 1973, she was also a program officer, academic director, and faculty member of a foundation-supported, seven-course academic program in Western civilization at Westminster.

She served as assistant dean of the college at Westminster and earlier worked as library assistant in languages at the University of Virginia.

In addition, she is a member of the Modern Language Association, American Association for Higher Education, and Association for General and Liberal Studies.

Dean Hall succeeds Julia T. Gary, who was dean of the College for fifteen years. Dean Gary will pursue a theology degree at Emory University's Candler School of Theology this fall.

BLAZER NAMED CPO DIRECTOR

Barbara Blazer is the College's newest administrative staff member. Coming from Mercer University in Atlanta as director of career counseling and placement, she has been appointed director of the Career Planning Office at the College.

Before working at Mercer, Ms. Blazer was an advisor at the University of Akron in Ohio. She taught elementary and middle school for seven years after earning her B.S. degree from the University of Akron. She earned an M.A. from Bowling Green State University in Ohio.

Ms. Blazer is a member of the College Placement Council and the Georgia College Placement Association. She was on its board of directors in 1983 and is secretary of the association for 1984.

She replaces Beverly Lorig, who moved to Rock Island, Illinois, where her husband, Tyler, is a psychology professor at Augustana College. □

STUDENTS RAISE DORM FUNDS

No one can say that Agnes Scott students don't care about their school. During a one-week campaign in April, junior Kaisa Bowman led team captains on each hall of each dorm to raise money for dorm renovation.

Dean of Students Martha Kirkland also challenged the students to give for the renovation. She pledged one dollar for every student who gave to the campaign. At the end of the week, eighty-four percent of the students — including day students and RTCs — pledged money. Eighty-nine percent of the boarding students gave money. Dean Kirkland kept her promise and gave more than four hundred dollars to the student campaign.

The first stage of the College renovation will begin next year with the closing of Inman dorm. Inman needs fewer repairs than the older dorms and houses no administrative or student offices. Students will live in the five other dorms for the 1984-85 year. □

AWARDS DAY

At Awards Day Convocation, May 30, the following awards were given to these students:

THE ROBERT PORTERFIELD SCHOLARSHIP

Given by the Southeastern Theatre Conference for graduate study in theatre to Cayce Lyn Callaway '84 of Ringgold, Georgia.

THE OUTSTANDING BLACKFRIAR AWARD

Greatest contribution in all areas of theatre production to Cayce Lyn Callaway '84 of Ringgold, Georgia.

THE BEST ACTRESS AWARD

Given by Maier and Berkele Jewelers to Deadra Lynn Moore '85 of Atlanta.

THE KATHLEEN HAGOOD GAMBRELL SCHOLARSHIP

For devotion to Christian study or work to Deborah Ann Fitzgerald '85 of Bristol, Virginia.

THE JENNIE SENTELLE HOUGHTON SCHOLARSHIP

For promise as indicated by character, personality, and scholarship to Kathy Jean Leggett '85 of Valdosta, Georgia.

DIVISION OF ANALYTICAL CHEMISTRY OF THE AMERICAN CHEMICAL SOCIETY AWARD

Encourages students with an aptitude for a career in that field to Laura Louise Feese '85 of Danville, Kentucky.

THE CLARK AWARD IN ORGANIC CHEMISTRY

In memory of former professor Marion T. Clark; awarded for understanding and enthusiasm in her study of introductory organic chemistry to Mariannette Anita Jones '87 of Monroe, Georgia.

THE CRC PRESS AWARD

Achievement by a freshman chemistry student to Charlotte Elizabeth Lewis '87 of Jacksonville, Florida.

AMERICAN INSTITUTE OF CHEMISTS MEDAL

Outstanding senior chemistry major to Charlotte Justine Roberts '84 of Clemson, South Carolina.

1984-85 MORTAR BOARD

Members of the 1983-84 Mortar Board chose fifteen juniors to the 1984-85 Board. Mortar Board is a national honorary society whose membership is based on leadership, scholarship, and service. The new members are (l to r): Melanie Lott, Laura Salter, Laura Langford, Cathleen Fox, Ginger Thompson, Kathleen Dombhart, Kathryn Scott, Dawn Teague, Laura Feese, Elizabeth Witt, Viviane Haight, Mary McCuiston, Kathe Canby, Eileen Altman, Elizabeth Boyd.

PHI BETA KAPPA

This spring, sixteen students were named to the Beta Chapter of Phi Beta Kappa, one of the nation's most prestigious honor societies recognizing superior academic achievement. Agnes Scott's chapter of Phi Beta Kappa was chartered in 1926. The chapter is one of four in Georgia and the only one in a women's college in Georgia. Pictured above (l to r) are: (seated) Helen Stacey and Sue Feese; (standing) Renee Thomas, Louise Bailey, Sharon Bevis, Le Thuy Hoang, Caroline Cooper, Julie Bradley, Fran Whitley. Not pictured are: Tina Roberts, Alicia Paredes, Fran Ivey, Mary Ellen Huckabee, Susanna Michelson Goheen, Diane Rickett, and Suzanne Brown.

VAUGHN WINS SCHOLARSHIP

Rising junior Karla Nell Vaughn of Bogart, Georgia, has been selected as a 1984 Truman Scholar. She is the second Agnes Scott student to win the prestigious scholarship awarded to only 200 college students nationwide each year.

The scholarships, funded by Congress to honor the former president, assist students preparing for public service. The students are nominated by their colleges for outstanding leadership potential in government. The scholarship pays for the last two years of college and for two years of graduate study.

A transfer student from the Georgia Institute of Technology, Karla is an English major who plans to enter law school to study criminal law. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James V. Vaughn.

The first Agnes Scott Truman Scholar, Burlette Carter '82, is a student at Harvard Law School. □

PUBLICATIONS CHANGE FOR MORE COVERAGE

In evaluating the roles of its publications, the College over the last two years has made several major changes in the format of the newsletter and most recently in the alumnae magazine. The former President's Newsletter was enlarged and renamed Main Events. To increase alumnae news coverage, the College began publishing Alumnae Events last summer as an insert to Main Events.

The combined newsletters are mailed to all alumnae, students, staff and faculty members. Main Events — without Alumnae Events — goes to corporations, foundations, and other friends of the College. By combining the two newsletters, the College expands events coverage and saves on printing and mailing costs. This allows College publications to be more effective by tailoring each publication's content to the appropriate audience.

Alumnae Events carries Class Notes at a considerable savings in printing costs. Some of the savings from these changes have enhanced the alumnae magazine. The spring issue, for example, had a four-color cover and some color pages inside.

In planning and producing its publications, the College attempts to communicate as much news as possible to all our audiences. If you have suggestions or comments, please send them to the Office of Public Affairs, Agnes Scott College, Decatur, GA 30030.

All future issues of the Agnes Scott Alumnae Magazine will carry letters to the editor. We invite you to send your views about subjects of interest to the address above.

AGNES SCOTT WELCOMES ATLANTA MINORITY LEADERS

More than thirty-five metro Atlanta minority community leaders met for lunch at Agnes Scott this spring. Coordinated by Valerie Whittlesey, admissions counselor for minority recruitment, the lunch drew the community leaders to the College.

Return to College student Karen Grantham spoke about her experience as a black attending a predominantly white school, and several black alumnae talked about the positive results of attending Agnes Scott.

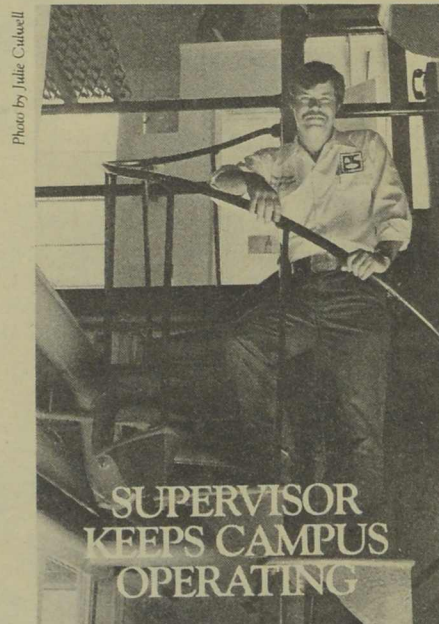

Standing with President Ruth Schmidt in the picture at right is Agnes Scott's first black graduate, Edna Lowe Swift '71, who attended the luncheon. She is now a Spanish teacher at Franklin D. Roosevelt High School in Atlanta. □

STAFF DAUGHTERS GRADUATE

Miriam Lyons, accounting clerical assistant, and Janet Gould, personnel director, were among the proud parents when their daughters, Leslie Lyons, (left), and Debby Frankum, (right), graduated in June.

Like quality physicians on a hospital staff, the physical plant personnel keep the College alive and well. Danny Warbington, physical plant supervisor, oversees the multitude of jobs that are necessary to keep the campus operating. He supervises the heating, ventilation and air conditioning work; painting; all technical wiring for lights and sound; carpentry; building maintenance; grounds; electrical work; operation of all steam functions of the steam plant; and lock and key control.

An employee of the College for five years, Warbington currently is working with the energy survey team, which will implement a new energy plan beginning this summer. The first phase will include lighting conservation and installing new hot water systems in each building. □

PARENTS PLAN COUNCIL

What is Black Cat? What is the honor system? What do students eat for midnight snacks? Why does your daughter wear bandanas and ask for Trivial Pursuit for Christmas? Just what is your daughter doing at college?

To find out the answers to these questions and to deal with major issues of college life, Agnes Scott is creating a Parents Council of all parents of current students and alumnae. Parents will learn what is happening on the college campus, and at the same time will be able to participate in college life in such areas as recruiting, fund raising, and career counseling.

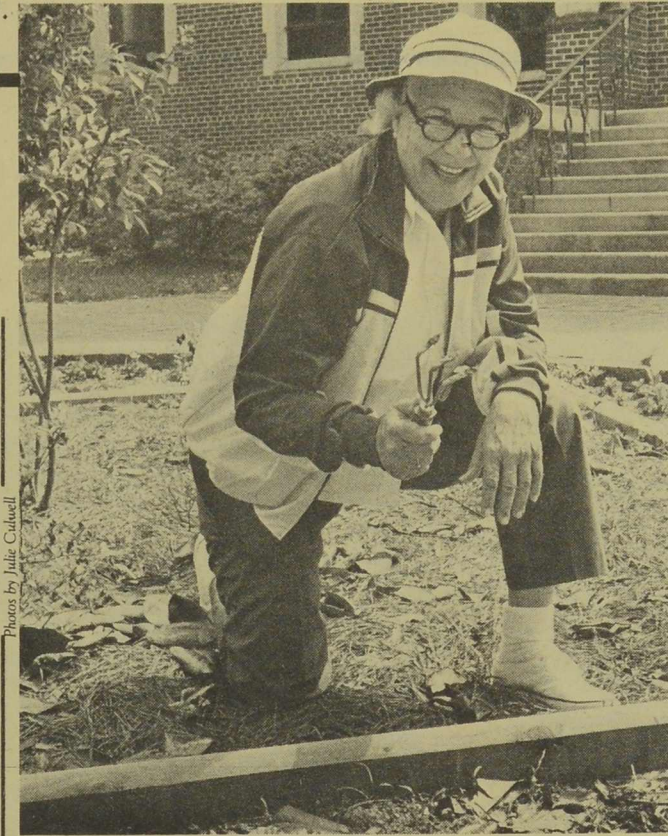

Parents of current students are invited to attend the first meeting of Parents Council during Great Scott Weekend, October 19-21. A wine and cheese party on Friday evening will begin the weekend of activities. Later, the Alabama Shakespeare Company will perform George Bernard Shaw's Arms and the Man at 8:15 p.m. in Presser Hall.

Parents Council activities continue Saturday morning with a continental breakfast and parents forum where the first meeting of the Parents Council will take place. Parents will elect board members to the council and will learn how they can be involved with the life of the College.

After the forum, parents are invited to the Great Scott Festival, a day-long line-up of entertainment and scholarly activities. The day is capped with a Fall Fling campus-wide tea dance.

On Sunday morning, all parents are invited to the Senior Investiture activities in Presser Hall. Parents of seniors are invited to the Investiture breakfast just before the service.

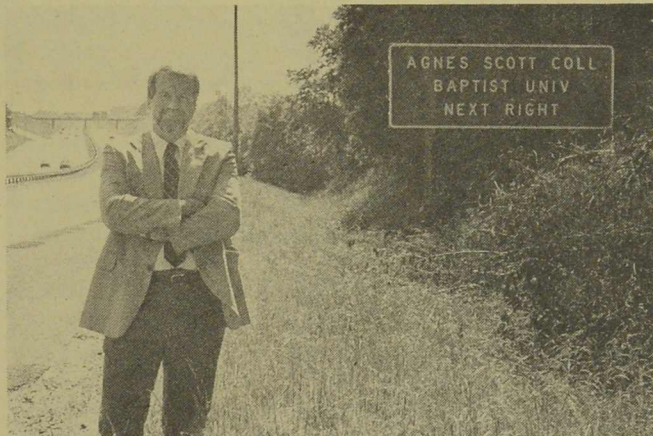

Cost for each parent for the weekend's activities is $10; tickets for the production of Arms and the Man are $6 more.

PROFESSOR HELPS WITH GROUNDS

Each spring the campus blossoms with colors from the assortment of flowers meticulously cared for by staff members and alumnae. Kate McKemie, physical education professor, has also worked on the grounds to ensure an inviting campus each year.

Since she prepared the grounds for inauguration ceremonies last year, Professor McKemie has volunteered many hours to work with physical plant personnel to groom the grounds. Last year she donated azaleas for planting in front of McCain Library to honor 1983's graduating seniors.

SIGN OF THE TIMES

The college is now on the road — at least on a sign. Signs pointing the way to the College have been placed on Interstate 20 and all along Candler Road. A long-time complaint from the College has been the inability to get the Georgia Department of Transportation to designate a highway directional sign for Agnes Scott. Rickard Scott, vice president for development and public affairs, found the right strings and pulled them to get the signs erected.

A STICKY SITUATION

What does one do with 350 gallons of Jello? That's what math major Meg Duncan had to explain to classmates and friends recently. The petite blonde spent a warm, sunny afternoon in the dining hall kitchen, stirring Jello mix and boiling water in laundry carts. Her stained red hands made enough Jello to fill an eight-foot wide swimming pool for a local nightclub's promotion — a Jello jump.

The cherry Jello and prizes lured Atlantans to jump in. Meg's help in the Jello jump received national attention through local and national television news.

CREATIVE IDEAS COMMITTEE SUGGESTS CHANGES

Agnes Scott took a good look at itself this year. Not only did architects find ways to renovate and restore the campus, admissions representatives examine the Admissions Office, and physical education consultants offer suggestions to the Department of Physical Education, but the College examined itself as well.

The faculty created an ad hoc committee last fall to listen to ideas and problems of the campus community so that the College might increase enrollment and have continued financial security. Although the committee has no power to implement programs, the Faculty Executive Committee is charged with acting upon the committee's recommendations, beginning fall 1984.

Members of the Creative Ideas Coordinating Committee include: Augustus Cochran, assistant professor of political science; Terry McGehee, assistant professor of art; Judith M. Tindel '73, director of admissions; John Pilger, assistant professor of biology; Arthur Bowling, associate professor of physics; Ayse I. Carden

STAFF FORMS COMMITTEE

As an outgrowth of the Creative Ideas Coordinating Committee report, the Agnes Scott College staff has elected representatives of a newly formed Staff Council.

Coordinator for Special Services Penny Rush Wistrand presented staff concerns to President Ruth Schmidt, who encouraged her to form a staff council.

"The council will be a clearing-house for staff-related concerns, programs, and suggestions," said Wistrand. "The staff is an integral part of the College, and I would like to see if we could form a better coalition for input into matters affecting our daily lives here. I think there are many facets of this community which the staff can enhance."

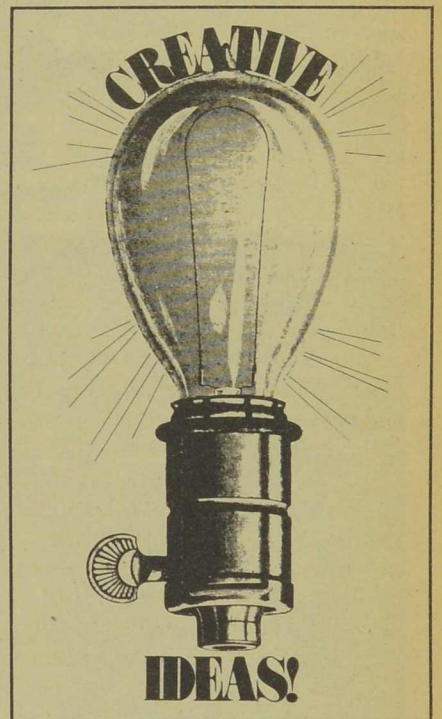

At a lunch meeting open to all staff members, these representatives were elected to the council: Alice Grass, assistant director of financial aid; Carter Hoyt, assistant director of admissions; Sue White, administrative assistant to the director of physical plant; Cynthia Richmond, technical services assistant; Kay Maggard, accounts receivable; Bill Korth, director of public safety; and Janet Gould, personnel director.

'66, associate professor of psychology; and Katharine Kennedy, assistant professor of history.

The group met throughout the year with students, faculty and staff members to discuss ways to strengthen the College's curriculum, outreach/exchange, student life, morale, recruitment, public relations, and finances.

In May, the committee presented their report and corresponding proposals to the faculty and Board of Trustees. The CICC recommended these changes:

- ☐ Hire a student activities coordinator;
- ☐ Provide better orientation for students to the city of Atlanta;
- ☐ Appoint a politician/journalist/business executive in residence to give a lecture series;
- ☐ Provide exchange classes with

- other area colleges and universities;
- ☐ Provide more money for faculty and staff members to attend professional meetings;
- ☐ Designate days off from classes as reading days and for symposia;
- ☐ Organize group and individual recreational sports;
- ☐ Create outdoor eating areas with grills;
- ☐ Expand the bookstore, enabling it to make a greater contribution to intellectual life on campus;
- ☐ Add new clubs such as the National Organization for Women and a debate team;
- ☐ Find ways to integrate men into college life without the College going co-ed.

turalism" at the Southern Anthropological Society meeting in Atlanta and "The Problem of the Southern Woman as an Ethnic American" at the Southern Sociological Society meeting in Knoxville, Tennessee. Dr. Dillman received an Agnes Scott

College course development fellowship.

MIRIAM DRUCKER, professor of psychology, received an Agnes Scott course development fellowship.

DEIRDRE GOOD, assistant professor of Bible and religion, presented a paper, "Calendrical Deficiency in Euginos (NHC III, 4 and V, 1)" at the southeastern regional meeting of the American Academy of Religion and the Society of Biblical Literature in Williamsburg, Virginia, in March. She received a travel grant from the American Council of Learned Societies to present a paper at the Third International Congress of Coptic Studies in Warsaw, Poland, in August. Prior to the Congress, she will be further researching Christian iconography in Europe with an Agnes Scott College new faculty research grant. In England she will give an illustrated lecture, "The Iconography of Sophia," to the Department of Theology at the University of Birmingham.

EDWARD C. JOHNSON, associate professor of economics, received a fellowship from the National Endowment for the Humanities. Dr. Johnson will study "Business in the History of American Culture" with Dr. Richard Abrams, professor of history at the University of California, Berkeley, June 18 through August 14.

CONSTANCE JONES, associate professor of sociology, received an Agnes Scott research grant for travel to complete her book, Hinduism in America: A Bibliography.

MYRTLE LEWIN, assistant professor of mathematics, received an Agnes Scott new faculty research grant for a study of high school and college mathematical programs, especially those in Georgia, as they relate to the crisis in math and technological education.

KATHARINE KENNEDY, assistant professor of history, received an Agnes Scott research fellowship to continue her work on German elementary education before World War I. She plans to complete two articles: "Marching on the Playground: Military Preparation in German Elementary Schools, 1871-1914" and "Germans and Prussians in South German History Lessons, 1870-1890." She also plans to edit her dissertation into a book.

SALLY MACEWEN, assistant professor of classical languages and literatures, received an Agnes Scott research fellowship to complete two articles on Euripides.

RAYMOND J. MARTIN, professor of music and College organist, presented a program, "The Role of the Church Musician as Accompanist," for the Gwinnett Music Teachers Association in Lawrenceville, Georgia, in March.

DARLING JOINS BOARD

DeKalb Council for the Arts Executive Director Barbara Chamness (l) and President Ruth Schmidt celebrate with Marilyn Darling (r) at a reception honoring her election to the council's board of directors. Darling, professor of dance at Agnes Scott, has gained recognition in Atlanta for her direction of the College's Studio Dance Theatre and the Dixie Darlings, a clogging group. The DeKalb Council for the Arts, of which Agnes Scott is a member, raises funds to support art programs in DeKalb County. Barbara Chamness is the mother of Jeanne Chamness '87.

Marilyn Darling, r.

THEODORE MATHEWS, associate professor of music, took members of the Agnes Scott Glee Club to England to sing in the Newcastle-Carlisle area in June. The trip is part of a Friendship Force exchange from Atlanta.

LUIS PENA, assistant professor of Spanish, received an Agnes Scott research fellowship to continue his project, "The Analysis of the Production of Modern Mexican Narrative, 1958-1970."

DUDLEY W. SANDERS, assistant professor of theatre, had his first one-act play, Maggie and the Bird Go Fishing, accepted for publication by Baker's Plays of Boston. The premiere of Maggie was held in the Winter Theatre at Agnes Scott Feb. 11, 1983. Maggie will be listed by Samuel French, the world's largest publisher of plays.

CONSTANCE SHAW, professor of Spanish, received an Agnes Scott research fellowship to complete her book on the Spanish author Aranguren.

LEON VENABLE, assistant professor of chemistry, has been elected to Sigma Xi, a scientific research society (Emory University chapter), and is chair of the chemistry division of the University Center in Georgia. Dr. Venable received an Agnes Scott New Faculty Research Grant to develop new synthetic techniques to make cobaltaboranes and to study the potential use of these compounds in stereospecific syntheses.

WILLIAM H. WEBER, associate professor of economics, was recently recognized for his leadership of the Atlanta Chamber Players when the group received the first Award of Merit given by the Metropolitan Atlanta Community Foundation to an arts organization for excellence in management. Dr. Weber serves as president of the board of directors of the six-member ensemble which started in residence at Agnes Scott in 1977. He also serves as a member of the Board of Directors of the Metro Atlanta Arts Fund, Inc. Dr. Weber received an Agnes Scott research fellowship to write a text, Macrosium, on international finance.

PROFESSORS PLAN HONORS SEMINAR

ALICE CUNNINGHAM, professor of chemistry, MIRIAM DRUCKER, professor of psychology, CONNIE JONES, associate professor of sociology, SALLY MacEWEN, assistant professor of classical languages and literatures, RICHARD PARRY, professor of philosophy, PATRICIA PINKA, professor of English, BECKY PROPHET, instructor in theatre, and HARRY WISTRAND, associate professor of biology, have been awarded an Agnes Scott research fellowship and research grant. These faculty members will be teaching the new Freshman Honors Seminar, Technology and Human Experience: Genetic Engineering. The group has met during the year and will meet for a month this summer to prepare the syllabus and bibliography for the course. □

Harry Wistrand

HARRY WISTRAND, associate professor of biology, has received an Agnes Scott research grant to travel to Puerto Rico to take the National Science Foundation course, Ecology and Evolution in the Tropics. In August Dr. Wistrand will lead a group of students to four Southwestern deserts for the Desert Biology course.

NAI CHUANG YANG, assistant professor of chemistry, received a National Science Foundation grant to research the synthesis of substituted naphthalimides and to study the electrophilic substituents effects on the intercalating ability with Deoxyribonucleic acid (DNA).

school in the fall or after a few years in the work force.

Looking back, the students saw their Agnes Scott years as a positive experience. They noted the academic challenge and their relationships with faculty members as the best part of their College experience.

The positive experience at Agnes Scott might not have been possible were it not for the scholarships they received. Several women had considered other colleges; some had other scholarship offers.

But the large amount of the Honor Scholarship lured many to Agnes Scott, where they "fell in love" with the College. Even students who were contenders for the scholarship, while not chosen, still decided to attend Agnes Scott once they visited the campus.

Melissa Abernathy, Cheryl Carlson, Sue Feese, Mary Ellen Huckabee, Fran Ivey, Patti Leeming, Denise Mazza, Colleen O'Neill, Alicia Paredes, Tina Roberts, Helen Stacey, and Marty Wooldridge are the first group of Honor Scholars to graduate.

History major Colleen O'Neill eventually plans to attend graduate school to become a playwright. She not only has worked with Blackfriars, the Arts Council, the Profile, Lecture Committee, College Bowl, Silhouette, Circle K, Dolphin Club, and Spirit Committee at Agnes Scott, but she has volunteered for the Atlanta Ballet and the Theatrical Outfit in Atlanta as well.

Sue Feese, with physics/astronomy and economics majors and awards including Dana Scholar, Mortar Board, Stukes Scholar, and Phi Beta Kappa, will attend Yale Law School. She was the number one player on the College tennis team for three of her four years. She also worked on the Profile, sang and played piano for the College jazz ensemble, London Fog, served as SGA president, and worked as a student admissions representative.

Tina Roberts, a chemistry major, will attend a medical scientist training program at Washington University in St. Louis. During the six-year program, she will complete both medical and doctoral training to earn M.D. and Ph.D. degrees in biochemistry, physiology, or immunology. She would like to combine research in medicine with medical practice.

Tina has been involved in Orientation Council, Board of Student Activities, the Silhouette, student admissions, Rep Council, and German Club. Named to Phi Beta Kappa and Mortar Board, she is a Dana Scholar, Coca-Cola Scholar, Outstanding Senior in Chemistry, and a Clark Award winner in organic chemistry.

Tina echoed her classmates when she said, "Through the challenging academic program I have learned how to approach and solve problems. Perhaps most important are the friendships I have made among students and with my professors."

Cheryl Carlson, economics/English major, added, "I've gained confidence in myself as a leader. I've learned to love the arts, and I've come to realize that I have a social responsibility that extends beyond myself, my family, and my friends to the campus and the community at large." □

THE KIRK CONCERT SERIES

The fourth season of the Kirk Concert Series opens Sept. 25 with a performance by pianist Richard Goode, 1980 winner of the Avery Fisher Prize and 1982 Grammy Award winner. Mr. Goode has played with most major American symphonies and numerous fine symphonies abroad. His fifteen-record recording of the Beethoven piano sonatas has been commissioned by the Book-of-the-Month Club for fall release.

I Nuovi Virtuosi Di Roma will perform Feb. 5, 1985. Consisting of twelve of Italy's most celebrated virtuoso musicians, all members of the famed Collegium Musicum Italicum, this group, now reassembled, will be coming to Atlanta for the first time in decades. The Beaux Arts Trio, performing April 16, is an unrivaled chamber group, consisting of three individually-renowned musicians: Menahem Pressler, piano; Isidore Cohen, violin; and Bernard Greenhouse, cello. These artists create an extraordinary oneness of ensemble playing, which is hailed on three continents.

FRIENDSHIP FORCE

Following a musical welcome by the Glee Club during a recent Friendship Force reception at Agnes Scott, more than forty Britons jumped onto the platform to sing a well-loved Newcastle song, "The Blaydon Races."

The reception welcomed to Atlanta Friendship Force visitors from Newcastle and Carlisle, England. Agnes Scott history professor Michael Brown, a Briton himself, gave College souvenirs to Keith Gilfillan, director of the Newcastle Exchange, as the Glee Club sang several Georgia songs.

POETS WILBUR, PASTAN FEATURED AT 1984 FESTIVAL

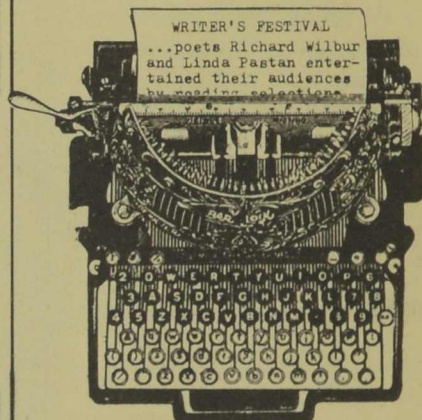

Agnes Scott student Robyn Perry '84 won first place in the short story competition, and guest poets Richard Wilbur and Linda Pastan entertained their audiences by reading selections from their poetry during the 1984 Writers' Festival in April.

Winning over college students throughout Georgia who competed for the prize, Robyn, an English major, received a hundred dollars for her first-place entry.

Pastan spoke during the morning and judged student work during a panel discussion that afternoon. Judging with her were Gretchen Schultz, associate professor of English at Oxford College of Emory University, and Kay Gilliland Stevenson '62, lecturer in literature at the University of Essex and visiting associate professor of English at Agnes Scott spring quarter.

A Pulitzer Prize-winning poet, Wilbur delighted a capacity audience in the Winter Theatre as he related his daily life with his family through much of his poetry. Both poets also spent time talking informally with students and faculty members about writing.

Pastan's poems have appeared in The New Yorker and Atlantic Monthly. She has published several books of poetry and was nominated for the American Book Award.

Wilbur has written numerous books of poetry and has earned the highest awards for his work, including the National Book Award and the Bollingen Prize for translation. Editor and teacher as well as translator, he is Writer in Residence at Smith College. □

PULITZER WINNER RETURNS TO ALMA MATER

Returning to her alma mater after more than fifteen years of absence, Marsha Norman did not come back unnoticed. The 1983 Pulitzer Prize-winning playwright for her play 'night, Mother returned April 30 to speak about her career and was greeted by enthusiastic students, alumnae, faculty and staff members, theatre buffs, and members of the news media.

Norman packed a lot of activity into her one-day visit as she responded to interviews with local and national media during the morning, met with students in an English class at noon, and talked with members of a local theatre group during the afternoon. Her incisive wit and comments about the difficulties of her profession captivated a full house in the Winter Theatre during her evening talk, "Time and Learning How to Fall."

"When the critics don't like the play, you fall," she said, "right there in front of everybody. But, of course, there is no way to do any significant work of any kind without falling. Falling is actually the most important part of this life. If you don't fall, then you weren't working close enough to the edge, then you were secretly holding on, then you weren't really flying. You just fooled everybody for a little while."

Norman has agreed to return to campus for another visit next spring. Details will be forthcoming in Main Events. □

BLACKFRIARS PRODUCE COMEDY

Photos by Julie Culwell

A zany comedy dominated the Agnes Scott stage this spring as the Blackfriars performed The House of Blue Leaves. Starring Cayce Callaway, Dee Moore, and Mark Perry, the play involves a frustrated man in a mid-life crisis who tries to become a songwriter. In the midst of his attempt, he has to contend with a crazy wife, an off-the-wall son, a mistress, and a cast of others — including nuns, nurses, orderlies, and the Pope — who somehow make their way into his life.

Dee Moore '85 won the 1984 Blackfriars Best Actress Award for her portrayal of Bunny, the songwriter's gauche mistress who wore tight-fitting, tasteless dresses and spoke with a strong New York accent. □

CALLAWAY WINS SCHOLARSHIP

Cayce Callaway '84 put on a good show this year. Such a good show that the theatre major received the Robert Porterfield Scholarship for graduate study in theatre. She was selected from applicants from a twelve-state region. Presented recently at the Southeastern Theatre Conference in Washington, D.C., the award will go toward tuition at the graduate school of her choice.

This year Ms. Callaway served as president of Blackfriars, the College's theatre troupe. She has also directed numerous plays and has earned several Blackfriars theatre awards, including the Outstanding Blackfriar Award for 1984. □

CASE AWARDS

Agnes Scott received national recognition from the Council for the Advancement and Support of Education (CASE) for publications promoting events. CASE is a national organization for professionals in public relations, development, and alumni affairs in higher education.

The 1983 CASE Recognition Program awarded Agnes Scott two citations for Individual Publications and Pieces for President Ruth Schmidt's inauguration invitation and program and for two events calendars which promote cultural events offered by the College to the community. □

Hot air balloon rides, lectures, face painting, exhibits, a haunted house, parents meetings, and arts performances are part of the festivities planned for Great Scott Festival during Great Scott Weekend Oct. 19-21.

The weekend's highlights include a meeting of the newly formed Parents Council, the Saturday Festival, a campus-wide tea dance, and the traditional Senior Investiture Service.

On Friday parents may attend a wine and cheese party before the Alabama Shakespeare Festival Performance of George Bernard Shaw's Arms and the Man.

The day-long Great Scott Festival begins Saturday morning with a 5K and 10K run, the first in what will be the annual Agnes Scott "Heart and Sole Classic." The runs begin at 8 a.m. at Decatur High School and end on the College's front campus. Entry fee is $7 in advance or $8 on the day of the race. Proceeds go to the American Heart Association.

The Parents Council will meet for breakfast and a forum at 8:30 a.m. and will adjourn when the Festival opens its doors at 10 a.m. The festival includes diverse entertainment, from modern dancing and clogging to performances by the College's vocal groups and synchronized swimming team. Also featured will be lectures by professors, scientific demonstrations, displays by various administrative offices, campus tours, an art exhibit and sale, mimes, and off-campus musicians.

Alumnae, students, staff and faculty members are invited to sell their artistic wares during the day. To reserve a booth, contact Betty Smith, Alumnae Office manager.

After the Festival closes at 4 p.m., parents and students may enjoy a tea dance that evening.

Everyone is invited to the Sunday Investiture service at 10:30 a.m. Prior to the service, seniors and their parents will be feted at a Senior Investiture Breakfast from 9-10 a.m. □

COLLEGE FETES RETIRING OFFICERS, TRUSTEES

The Agnes Scott community sadly said good-bye to six of the College's vital leaders during a dinner in their honor this spring. Three staff members and three trustees retired this year.

Dean Julia T. Gary will pursue a theology degree at Emory University in Atlanta; Paul M. McCain, special assistant to the president for planned giving, will retire while free-lancing his fund-raising expertise; and Lee Barclay, vice president for business affairs, will retire to his home in Alabama to spend time with his family and to become involved in the Montevallo, Alabama, community.

The three retiring board members are Alex Gaines, former chairman of the board; Hansford Sams, who recently served on the development and executive committees; and A.H. Sterne, who recently served on the development and academic affairs committees.

MRS. WARREN GIVES COLLEGE FROST POEM

Wilma Warren, widow of Ferdinand Warren, who was head of the art department at Agnes Scott from 1950-1969, presented the College with a poem written by Robert Frost while he sat for his portrait, painted by Warren.

The portrait now hangs in McCain Library by the Robert Frost exhibit. While Warren painted the famous poet, Frost jotted down from memory several lines from a poem, "Questioning Faces," he had previously written and presented the lines to Warren. Frost visited Agnes Scott twenty times.

In June Mrs. Warren gave the poem to the College to be added to the Frost exhibit, which includes poems, prose, and letters by the writer.

AGNES SCOTT COLLEGE

Dr. Edward McNair states in his book Lest We Forget, "Miss Mary Wallace Kirk drafted a constitution intended to make the Agnes Scott Alumnae Association national in scope." This was in 1921, and the Agnes Scott Alumnae Association has endeavored to meet Miss Kirk's expectations ever since. This April the association elected a president from Texas to serve with vice-presidents from North Carolina and New Jersey, all of whom are faithfully supported by the chairs and officers from the Atlanta area.

The Board of Directors consists of seventeen alumnae who serve as chairs for admissions, awards, careers, class presidents, club presidents, continuing education, fund, house and grounds, publications, and student liaison, as well as the vice presidents, immediate past president, and past president. The Alumnae Association is also represented on the College's Board of Trustees by the past president and the immediate past president.

The Board of Directors meets three times a year to discuss alumnae concerns and involvement in the College. Should an alumna need assistance or information in any of these areas, she has representation. Please do not hesitate to call on any of us.

The College also calls on her alumnae. The greatest gift an alumna can give is a prospective student. Please recommend Agnes Scott to your friends and relatives, and send names of prospects to the Office of Admissions.

Also, please let me take this opportunity to thank and congratulate all of you who participated in this year's Annual Fund drive and the Phonathon. Agnes Scott alumnae reached the highest monetary goal ever set for us, $250,000, and much more important, we raised the percentage of those giving from 32 percent last year to 36 percent this year. COLLEGE LENDS AUDUBON PRINT TO EXHIBIT

This fall, Agnes Scott will lend an original Audubon print to the first major exhibit in the Southeast on the life and work of ornithologist and painter John James Audubon. The exhibit, sponsored by the Chattahoochee Nature Center, will open at the center September 11.

Forty original Audubon prints and memorabilia will be displayed. The exhibit will also be on display in Bulloch Hall, October 27 through November 1.

College's print to Susan Wilson, exhibit coordinator with the nature center. The print, which hangs in the Alumnae House, was given to the College in 1941 by the Alumnae Association when the house was redecorated.

RTC ALUMNA'S HOBBY GIVES JOY TO MANY

Several years ago, Arla Redd '83 bought her husband an orchid for Christmas. Little did she know that the gift would become a full-time hobby for her — caring eight hours a day for almost two hundred orchid plants that fill two greenhouses.

"It was five years later that I realized I was growing the orchids to detect insects, fungi, and other problems. A member of the American Orchid Society, Redd keeps up-to-date with research on treating diseased orchids by reading the society's literature.

Her love for the flower comes from its variety. "Orchids have infinite variety — like Cleopatra.

for me," the slender, soft-spoken alumna said.

The mother of six and a former Return to College student stays constantly busy. "I'm never bored," Mrs. Redd admits, explaining that her days are devoted to her family of a husband, six children, and two grandchildren and her orchids.

Her involvement with the plants constitutes more than watering. Mrs. Redd observes her plants for viruses and fungi. She sends diseased plants to a lab in Florida for examination, and she has microscopes in her kitchen

That intrigues me."

According to Mrs. Redd, orchids are one of the three largest groups of plant families. There are between twenty and thirty thousand species, not including hybrids, she says.

Mrs. Redd has exhibited and won awards for the delicate, colorful flowers she has carefully grown. She sometimes sells her orchids to local florists, but she does not want to turn her hobby into a business. Next to the personal satisfaction she gains from growing flowers is the joy she gets from giving them away.

"It's as much a challenge to find a place to put the blooms as it is to grow them," she says. "I want to give the most pleasure to the most people."

Agnes Scott is on her list. Guests at College dinners and receptions are always impressed by the beautiful orchids used for centerpieces and occasionally for corsages.

"Arla Redd has been wonderfully generous in providing elegance and beauty for significant occasions and events on campus, and her flowers give great pleasure to many people. I am delighted to be able to express special thanks to her from all of her Agnes Scott friends," said President Ruth Schmidt.

Mrs. Redd's link to the campus stems not only from her graduating from Agnes Scott, but also from having two daughters, Ellen Redd McKenzie '74 and Madelyn Redd '78, graduate from the College. Mrs. Redd finished her degree in English at Agnes Scott last year after taking classes on a full- and part-time basis at the College for more than fifteen years as she raised her family. She completed her B.A. at Agnes Scott in 1983 after her daughters had graduated.

Like juggling her time between studying and rearing a family, Mrs. Redd finds growing orchids a challenge. Each year, though, she becomes better at her hobby because she continues to learn about orchids. She hopes one day to study virology in graduate school and to conduct research, but for now her devotion to caring for her family keeps her at home.

Her devotion to her family is obvious as she briefly stops talking during a recent interview at her home when her teenage son comes home from school. Her attention focuses on him — she asks how he is and listens attentively as he recalls his day at high school. At the close of the interview, one of her daughters arrives with Mrs. Redd's two grandchildren. As Mrs. Redd turns to them, a loving expression emerges on her face. She is delighted to have them for visits.

Although her priority is her family, she still has graduate school in mind. As she explains, "I don't close doors."

CHATTANOOGA CLUB'S TOUR RAISES $1,200 FOR COLLEGE

Tiptoeing through two thousand tulips and other flowers brought Agnes Scott $1,200 this spring.

The Chattahoochee Area Agnes Scott Alumnae Club arranged a garden tour of three gardens in April. Under the leadership of President Anne Foster Curtis '64, the club presented the $1,200 profit from the tour to the College on Alumnae Day.

Virginia Wing Power '26, whose garden was on the tour, had offered her two-acre garden several years ago for a show to benefit the College. Her garden, which includes Japanese cherry trees, several hundred azaleas, more than two thousand tulips, and a large section of wildflowers, was first laid out about thirty years ago. The design emphasizes contrasts in light and shadow and was planned to be a picture as viewed from the lower terraces.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Barks and Mr. and Mrs. Socrates Sabater also graciously included their gardens and the Sabater house on the Agnes Scott tour.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Mrs. Summer, the only member of the Class of 1914 to return for her seventieth reunion and the oldest alumna present on Alumnae Day, greeted alumnae at the annual meeting with these words.

It is time, once again, seventy years after my graduation for me to say to you, my beloved Agnes Scott, "Ave et vale -- hail and farewell!" "Here on your magic campus where memory wears a morning face," things seem to return to what they once were. It is 1910 again, I am no longer a nonagenarian. I am young again, just 17, a freshman, and my room is on Rebekah Scott's third floor.

Remember Alexander Pope's warning about scanty education?

*A little learning is a dangerous thing,
Drink deep or taste not the Pierian spring.*

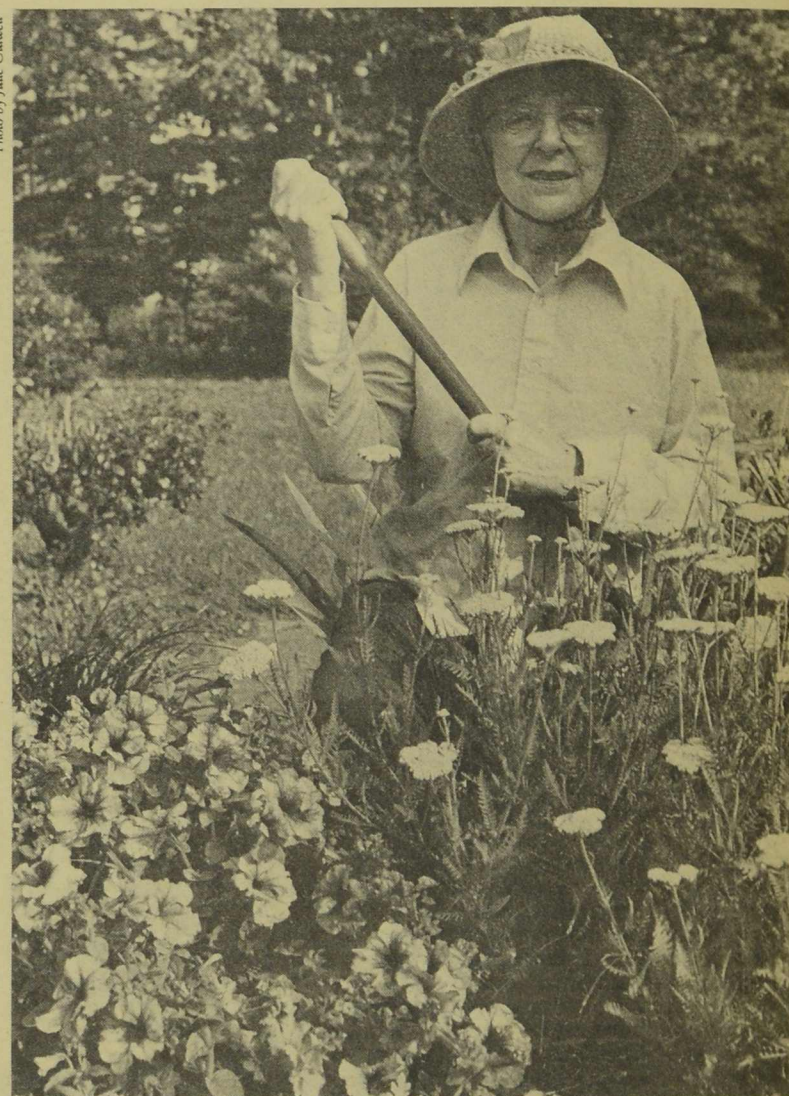

So I long for the old classes and the wonderful teachers, no longer with us now: Miss Louise McKinney, Dr. Mary Frances Sweet, Miss Mary L. Cady, Dr. Lillian Smith, Miss Susan Colton, Miss Helen LeGate, Miss Gertrude K. Sevin, Mr. John I. Armstrong, Dr. J.D.M. Armistead, Mr. Samuel Guerry Stukes; our wonderful dean, Miss Nannette Hopkins; and our first president, Dr. Frank H. Gaines, lovingly spoken of as "D.G." (behind his back).

"May the Lord bless thee and keep thee. The Lord make his face shine upon thee and be gracious unto thee. The Lord lift up his countenance upon thee and give thee peace." Amen. This is my prayer for you, my beloved Agnes Scott.

Nelle Chamlee Howard '34

ALUMNAE ASSOCIATION CITES THREE OUTSTANDING ALUMNAE

NELLE CHAMLEE HOWARD has chaired the Alumnae Garden Committee since 1974 and has continued to work on the restoration of the garden since that time. After she graduated in 1934, Nelle worked at Agnes Scott as assistant postmistress and manager of the bookstore; as alumnae secretary, who edited the Quarterly, served as hostess at Alumnae House, and raised funds to support the Alumnae Association; and also was Agnes Scott correspondent for the Atlanta Georgian newspaper. While alumnae secretary, she helped Laurie Belle Stubbs Johns '22 and Frances Gilliland Stukes '24 work in the Alumnae Garden.

"I became interested in gardening in high school," says Nelle, "when I designed a formal garden for a home economics project." She has studied with the National Council of Garden Clubs and has been named a National Council Flower Show Master Judge and a landscape design consultant by the NCGC.

The same week she was honored by Agnes Scott alumnae, she received a certificate of merit from the Garden Club of Georgia for her outstanding contribution to gardening. She has held offices in the Designers Study Club, a regional judges' study group of which she is a charter member; College Heights Garden Club; Decatur Flower Show Association; North Georgia Council Flower Show Judges; the Garden Club of Georgia; and the National Council of Garden Clubs.

In addition, Nelle holds certificates as a master judge, a landscape design critic, a daffodil judge, and in Sho Fu School of Japanese Flower Arranging. A

Frances Freeborn Pauley '27

At the Annual Meeting, Alumnae Association President Jean Salter Reeves '59 (l) and Awards Chair Betty Fountain Edwards Gray '35 (c) presented the Distinguished Career Award to Elizabeth Stevenson '41 (r).

A gardener, a human rights activist, and an author/professor were the recipients of this year's Outstanding Alumnae Awards presented on Alumnae Day. Honored this year respectively for service to the College, service to the community, and distinguished career were Nelle Chamlee Howard '34, Frances Freeborn Pauley '27, and Elizabeth Stevenson '41.

recognized horticultural expert, Nelle has been a consultant for the College grounds and has given programs across Georgia to teach Christmas decorations, flower arrangements, landscape design, and organic gardening.

Not only has Nelle served on the College's Garden Committee, but she has also been president of the Decatur Alumnae Club, the house chair on the Executive Board, and fund chair for her class over several years.

Active at Decatur Presbyterian Church since 1939, Nelle has served as assistant organist, pianist, teacher, and circle leader. Lucia Howard Sizemore '65, one of her two daughters, received the alumnae award for Nelle, who was in China.

FRANCES FREEBORN PAULEY "has been in the forefront of practically every reform movement in Georgia for the past fifty years," said Margaret McDow MacDougall '24, who introduced Frances during Alumnae Weekend. Her work on behalf of the poor began when she first battled social and economic injustices during the Depression, fighting for free lunches in DeKalb County Schools.

An active member of the League of Women Voters, Frances was state president and on the board of directors in the 1950s. As president, she struck the "white membership only" clause from the bylaws and led the league's fight to overthrow the county unit system. She has been executive director of the Georgia Human Relations Council and has worked as a civil rights field representative for the Department of Health, Education and Welfare in Mississippi.

In 1974 Frances received the Women of Conscience Award from the National Council for Women. The award cited her because "She made the unfinished business of human rights her personal business." Frances finally retired, but did not remain inactive long. In 1976 she formed the Georgia Poverty Rights Organization to lobby for welfare rights.

A 1981 recipient of the Mrs. Fred W. Patterson Award for Exceptional Personal Ministry from the Christian Council of Metropolitan Atlanta, Frances has been called "more a mediator than an agitator." She is a board member of the American Civil Liberties Union and of Georgia Legal Services and is chair of HEAT (Heating Energy Assistance Team) Advisory Committee.

"She is...a physical specimen of conscience, a roving testimony to the care people are supposed to feel for one another," said writer Steve Oney in a cover story for Atlanta Weekly. As state Senator Julian Bond described her, "She is everybody's grandmother and nobody's fool."

ELIZABETH STEVENSON is an author and professor at Emory University, where she was recently named Candler Professor of American Studies. Candler professorships are awarded to Emory faculty members for excellence in teaching, scholarship, and service to Emory. Elizabeth is the only Emory faculty member without graduate degrees to become a Candler professor.

Despite full-time employment as an auditor for three wartime agencies of the U.S. Government, and from 1947-1956 as library assistant at the Atlanta

Public Library, she made time for research and writing. Her first book, The Crooked Corridor: A Study of Henry James, was published in 1949. She earned the first of two Guggenheim Fellowships in 1950-51 to study Henry Adams.

Her work on Adams, Henry Adams: A Biography, was published in 1955 and won the Bancroft Award in 1956 as best published biography. She followed with an anthology, A Henry Adams Reader. In 1955, Elizabeth was named Atlanta Woman of the Year in the Arts. She received her second Guggenheim in 1956-57, to study Lafcadio Hearn, and a Rockefeller fellowship in 1959 enabled her to go to Japan for further research on Hearn. Her work, Lafcadio Hearn, was printed in 1961.

From 1960 to 1974, Elizabeth was secretary and assistant to the dean of Emory College. During that time she served as a judge for the National Book Award, and her book, Babbitts and Bohemians: The American 1920s, was published in 1967. She received five Emory University Faculty Research Committee grants for study on her most recent books.

From 1974 to 1977 she was research associate at Emory's Institute of Liberal Arts, was promoted in 1977 to assistant and associate professor, and in 1982 was named a full professor, all on the foundation of her Agnes Scott B.A. degree.

Her most recent book, Park Maker: A Life of Frederick Law Olmsted, was published in 1977. To research Olmsted, she received a National Endowment for the Humanities Summer Stipend in 1974. She is a board member of the Frederick Law Olmsted Association in New York City and a consultant for the National Association of Olmsted Parks.

A consultant for the National Endowment of the Humanities and a member of the Authors Guild and the American Studies Association, Elizabeth has had book reviews and essays published in South Atlantic Quarterly, Virginia Quarterly Review, The Nation, The New York Times Book Review, and the Georgia Historical Quarterly. Elizabeth's Emory colleague, Georgia B. Christopher '55, said, "Professor Stevenson's accomplishments would be outstanding for a life-long academic, but for a 'lady scholar' working most of her life independently, they are amazing." □

20th reunion poem, Class of '64, Agnes Scott College

Changing

"You haven't changed at all!" somebody cries —
Meaning, beneath the subtly silvered hair,
The altered map time has begun to trace
Across a once-unmarked and girlish face,
The ounce of extra padding here and there,
Remains a girl one still might recognize.

That eager girl of twenty years ago,
Ready to change the world, or her own life,
Or everybody's mind, at least, about her strength,
Found change immediate, and change at length;
Her days, her years, indeed, with change were rife —
But not always the kind she hoped to show.

A better world, more peaceful and more just,
A future free of poverty and fear —
Elusive such bright alterations proved
As through these rapid twenty years we've moved,
Changing those things within our power to change —
Diapers, jobs, husbands, how we style our hair,
The TV channel, or our brand of soap,
Our church, our dress size — Shall we now despair
At all the change with which we could not cope,
At all the things we failed to rearrange?
Do we now plan a future more austere,
Consigning all our girlish dreams to dust?

Perhaps — but we have sons and daughters now
Nearly as old — or young — as we were then;
Their dreams might be the catalyst to make
Some new experiment — for they know how
To change us more than we have changed from when
We first set out, our world's old forms to break.
And still remains that changing, unchanged girl —
Twenty years hence, and under grayer hair,
She may be hidden, but she will be there;
The only face we'll ever see as strange
Is one that, with the years, refused to change.

Virginia's Turn

Those of us who live in Atlanta have just observed an annular eclipse. I was pleased to see the dancing crescents projected through small gaps in the foliage in my cherry tree and plainly visible on the picnic bench, to watch the crescents decrease in size, to see the eclipse, and then to see the crescents of light appear on the other side of the moon's black image.

While those of us in Atlanta and other cities along the eclipse path were celebrating that scientific phenomenon, I thought of the astronomical pride we Agnes Scott alumnae should take in our own Bradley Observatory and in the value of this facility when talking to prospective students. Our Beck telescope with its 30-inch aperture is still probably the largest owned by any women's college in the world, according to Dr. William Calder, professor emeritus of physics and astronomy.

In 1949 Dr. Calder learned that Henry Gibson of Philadelphia was offering his telescope for sale. With the encouragement of President James Ross McCain and a donation from the Beck Foundation, Professor Calder acquired the giant telescope for the College and established Agnes Scott's position as an astronomy center of the Southeast. I can remember that my mother, who lived near the College, regularly attended evening lectures and passed along to me books about the universe.

The professors in this department have continued to offer courses of popular interest for the community. Dr. Robert Hyde recently explained the annular eclipse to a meeting of the Decatur Alumnae Club. During Christmas, he and Julius Staal presented programs on the "Astronomical Possibilities of the Christmas Star." Dr. May Kaftan-Kassim held open house on Alumnae Weekend to show our observatory to families of alumnae.

We can be immensely proud of our facilities in astronomy and should mention this resource in publicizing the College.

Hedrick Nickels, to the niece of Alethia and Regina Pinkston '17. We grieve for our classmates who have gone to their long home and with their relatives. Julia was the first president and for many years trustee of the Young Matrons' Circle of Tallulah Falls School. In 1982 she was presented an award by the Georgia Fund for Independent Colleges for her support of higher education (including ASC). Margaret's sister, Mary Rebekah Hedrick '27, also lived in Bristol, Tenn. Charlotte Newton and Jan '17 had been close to the Pinkstons — roommate and traveling companion. Charlotte thoughtfully wrote immediately after the deaths, only two weeks apart. From her letter: "I love and appreciate the girls of 1921 and am proud to be one of them." So say we all! . . . Our sympathy also goes to our president, Helen Hall Hopkins, in the death of her husband, only two days after a massive stroke. Both were very active and very youthful in appearance. Helen continues her residence in Sun City. Her daughter and grandchildren are near in California. Helen planned to attend the graduation of her son's son from West Virginia in June . . . To Jean McAlister our sympathy in the death of her brother in May '83 after a long illness . . . We also extend sympathy to Edith Roark Van Sickle, whose husband died in January. Edith has moved to Fairhope, Ala. . . . Only Betty Floding Morgan and Sarah Fulton attended alumnae festivities, sorry that no other classmates were with us at the lovely Fifty Year Club dinner. Margery Moore Tappan '20 sat between us. Saturday's program was excellent, though rain (for first time ever!) prevented lunch outdoors. To be in the "new" gym was a first experience. Everyone was most cordial! President Schmidt graciously drove the handicapped from Gaines to lunch. Two years hence, our 65th! How many? For our 60th there were eight, counting honorary member Seals Aiken. Let's plan! . . . From the outstanding fine arts center, Jackson, Miss., Marguerite Watkins Goodman sent the secretary three books she has written with request that they be presented to McCain Library. After reading them with pleasure and writing deserved congratulations to Marguerite, Sarah did so. From introduction, about the author: "M.W. Goodman attended Millsaps College before Agnes Scott and taught in Biloxi and Jackson High Schools before receiving MA in English from Tulane; a 1935-1967 member of English department at Millsaps." Titles: Come, Go Home with Me, Silver Finger Bows, Christmas Comes in Assorted Sizes . . .

Lucile Conant Leland is still active, still living in a 1680 farm house with a German shepherd, pet and watchdog, and a very friendly, talkative parrot. With Boston a convenient bus trip away, the Boston Symphony and Museum of Fine Arts make delightful adventures. She still enjoys her painting, just for pleasure. "Such happy memories of Miss Lewis in the top floor studio in Main." One granddaughter is a craftsman with metals, designing and making lovely jewelry . . . Jean McAlister lives with a cousin at Friends Home in Greensboro, N.C. Jean has five nieces and nephews, 15 greats, and nine great-greats, and her life centers around them. She has mild angina and had a slight stroke several years ago but says she is "OK now."

'23 The class sends its sympathy to the family of Viola Hollis Oakley, who died in April in Dothan, Ala. Viola was a member of the First Baptist Church of Columbia where she taught the young people's department for almost 50 years. She was a charter member of the Salmagundi Club, a woman's service club in Columbia.

Our class met at the home of Frances Gilliland Stukes. There were 10 of us there for a delicious dinner. Each one not there was missed, for Frances read the class roll from way back and we mentioned and thought of each one. Those present were Isabelle Sewell Hancock, Sarah Flowers Beasley, Lucy Rhyne Walker, Augusta Thomas Lanier, Vick Howie Kerr, Eddie Ficklen Harper, Ann Hatton Lewis, Elizabeth Henry Shands, Frances Gilliland Stukes, Martha Eakes Matthews. Several were at the Fifty Year Club dinner, including Pat Turner Cravey, Margaret McDow MacDougall made the presentation of the Community Service award to Frances Freeborn Pauley '27. The following were elected class officers: Elizabeth Henry Shands, president; Martha Eakes Matthews, secretary; Frances Gilliland Stukes, fund chair . . . Our sympathy to Agatha Deaver, whose brother has died . . . Evelyn Eastman Beck, who attended the Fifty Year Club dinner in April, graduated from Barnard in '25 and spent 18 months with the Near East Relief. She was Dr. William F. Albright's librarian at American School of Oriental Research in Jerusalem and traveled all over Palestine. From 1928 to 1931 Evelyn studied at Union Theological Seminary in NYC, receiving her BD degree. She was married in 1931. Evelyn taught piano 25 years. Son Peter is housing coordinator for the Community Action Agency in Union City . . . I am listing some people we have not heard from in years. Perhaps if we request news from them, they will respond: Margaret Hyatt Walker, Eunice Kell Simmons, Julia Pope, Montie Sewell Burns, Susie Stokes Taylor.

Margaret's book, And Set Aglow a Sacred Flame, was published in December . . . Ellen Fain Bowen's husband Al had lung surgery in December but has recovered well and is golfing again . . . Anne Hubbard Lee tells of the misfortune of suffering a light stroke, but happily, she is recovering with no paralysis . . . Juanita Greer White's husband Tom has had recent serious illness. He is improving, but his illness made them forgo their usual traveling, though they did manage a trip down the coast of Mexico in September before his illness . . . Rosalie Wootten Deck had her pace slowed in late February when she fell and broke three bones in her ankle . . . With sadness, we report that Betty Chapman Pirkle's husband, Carl, died in his sleep on April 1. Love and sympathy are extended to Betty, her two sons, and two daughters.

Lib enjoyed an Easter visit from Elizabeth Lilly Swedenberg, who was in North Carolina because of her sister's illness and death. Our sympathy goes out to her in this loss . . . We have learned that Louise Davis has gone into the Georgia Baptist Convalescent

On Saturday, April 28, at the general alumnae meeting, a spirited affair, we were proud to see Frances Freeborn Pauley recognized as an outstanding alumna for her successful career in community service. Margaret McDow MacDougall '24 spoke of Frances's years of devotion to unpopular and difficult causes benefitting poor people. Nine members of our class gathered in the Evans Dining Hall for the Fifty Year Club Dinner: Mildred Cowan Wright, Martha Crowe Eddins and Tom, Maude Jackson Padgett, Elizabeth Lynn and brother Robert, Lamar Lowe Connell (treasurer of the club), Louise Lovejoy Jackson with son William, Miriam Preston Sinclair with Ken, Emily Stead, and Jo Bridgman. These weekend gatherings with opportunities to see old classmates and other friends young and old bring out many expressions of how much Agnes Scott has meant to so many during the long years. She suffers from Alzheimer's disease, diagnosed in 1978. She has had some visitors . . . The class extends sincere sympathy to Helen Etheredge Griffin in the death of her husband, Dr. Taylor Wood Griffin, and to the family of Margaret Smith Kingdon, who died Christmas night, 1983 . . . Gail Nelson Blain has attended the New Orleans World's Fair, is very enthusiastic about it, and encourages all classmates to come and call her once they arrive. She will work several days this summer and fall in the Christian ministries pavilion, Thirst, at the fair. She has had a poem, the first she's written since high school, accepted for publication in the Samuel Taylor Coleridge memorial anthology, to be published in October.

'34 College reunions come and go, but if you missed our 50th, what you did miss! The ASC Alumnae Office lists 158 on our class roll, of whom 21 are deceased; the addresses of 28 are lost or withheld by request; to the remaining 108, reunion letters were sent by Mary Sloan Laird and her committee, and 71 replies were received. The reunion events were attended by 49 class members, 19 of whom brought their husbands! You should have come! The entire class is indebted to the Reunion Committee, chaired by Mary McDonald Sledd and Mary Sloan Laird, for their super planning. In October, Mary Sledd suffered a heart attack and Mary Laird valiantly stepped into the breach, and with her hard-working committee, brought off an outstanding reunion weekend. Marguerite Jones Love, a talented portrait painter, created a beautiful class banner, which was inspired by a photo of Buttrick Hall in our '34 yearbook. Rosa Shuey Day designed and made our nametags with annual pictures on a purple felt background. Jane MacMillan Tritchler designed a 10-page booklet of reunion events. Elaine Heckle Carmichael, Frances Adair, Nelle Chamlee Howard, and Mary Laird compiled annual pictures, questionnaire material, photographs, and newspaper write-ups for the beautiful scrapbook, which is in the Alumnae Office. Come by and see it. Rudene Taffer Young was "chief gofer," working out transportation for out-of-town and local class members. Eleanor Williams Knox delivered a beautiful and touching tribute to the memory of the 21 deceased members of our class. Louise McCain Boyce with Rudene Young served as Nominating Committee to select class officers for the next five years. Both Louise and Rudene served on the Reunion Committee. Finally, and this was a feature which had to be heard to be appreciated, Lucy Goss Herbert presented a "Kaleidoscope" account of events that have happened to our class over the last 50 years. Lucy's wit and clever accounts of antics enchanted us all! Others on the Reunion Committee were Nelle Howard, Aloe Risse Barron Leitch, Bella Wilson Lewis, Gladys Pratt Entrican, and Martha Gunn. I served where I could, until I had emergency gall bladder surgery two weeks before reunion. One of the highlights of the weekend was the class luncheon at Houston Mill House. Our special guests were President Ruth Schmidt, Dr. and Mrs. Paul McCain, Miss Llewellyn Wilburn '19, Dr. George Hayes, and Martha Crowe Eddins '27. Dr. Virginia Prettyman was honored at the Fifty Year Club Dinner as one of four "Fifty Year Club Stars." Virginia was assistant in English at ASC from 1936-1938, earned her master's in English at UNC, her Ph.D. in English at Yale in 1943. She was instructor of English at Smith from 1944-1947 and professor of English at Wellesley from 1947 until her retirement in 1974. She is a member of Phi Beta Kappa, the Modern Language Association, and the American Association of University Professors. We are proud of our Fifty Year Club Star! Nelle Chamlee Howard was one of three outstanding alumnae honored at the annual alumnae meeting. Her award was for service to the College. Since Nelle was on a preplanned trip to China, her daughter, Lucia '65, accepted the award for her. For complete details, see the article in this issue of Alumnae Events . . . Martha England Gunn had as her guests for the weekend Helen Boyd McConnell, Elizabeth Johnson Thompson, Carolyn Russell Nelson, Johnnie Mae York Rumble, and Lib Winn Wilson. Martha's husband, Leonard, kindly left home but was available for chauffeuring. It was a lively houseparty! Martha and Leonard have traveled widely in recent years attending senior-age tennis tournaments . . . Sara Moore Cathey and Tyson stayed with Rosa Shuey Day. Tyson has many hobbies, mainly hybridizing day lilies and operating a ham radio station. One of their ham radio friends is a neighbor of Carolyn Russell Nelson . . . Virginia Fisher (alligator-killer) Leifert and Roy are as young and peppy as ever. Virginia lives near Martha Skeen Gould and is going to tell her all about our doings . . . Sybil Grant has risen to the office of commander in the Navy and has received well-deserved national acclaim. The citation presented to her when she retired stated, "the President of the United States takes pleasure in presenting her the Legion of Merit for exceptionally meritorious service during the years from 1944 to 1967." Sybil lives in Virginia Beach and volunteers service for several causes as well as managing her real estate holding . . . Elaine Heckle Carmichael is retired after a distinguished career as reading specialist with DeKalb County Schools as well as at Emory U Reading Clinic. She and Julian have three children and two grandchildren, and this is their 50th year of married life! . . . Lillian Herring Rosas traveled 2,350 miles from Reseda, Calif., to attend reunion and delighted classmates with selections on President Schmidt's piano at the reception for our class at the president's house. Lillian is still studying piano and Spanish in addition to serving as vice chairman of the Board of Deacons at St. James Presbyterian Church and serving as volunteer pianist for youth groups . . . Marguerite Jones Love, now an accomplished portrait painter, is studying under Ben Shute at Atlanta's College of Art. Her paintings were included in a recent show at the Aronson Art Galleries in Atlanta. She is working on a commission to paint portraits of four former ministers of Peachtree Presbyterian Church, where she has served as elder and president of WOC . . . Hyta Plowden Mederer shares Sara Moore Cathey's hobby of hybridizing day lilies and registering her new varieties. She has received many honors, including being named master judge of the National Council of Garden Clubs. Her travels have included five trips to the Orient and three round-the-world tours . . . Mary Grist Whitehead, who has also traveled extensively, says, "I feel I have enjoyed the best of three worlds, that of homemaker, wife, and mother, a career as librarian, and a life of community service — all in the town where I was born and reared, Blakely, Ga." . . . Because we have so much news, the rest of it will appear in the next issue or two. Officers elected at reunion are: Mary McDonald Sledd, president; Elizabeth Johnson Thompson, vice president; Jane MacMillan Titchler, fund chair; and Ruth Shippey Austin, secretary. Do send news — everything that happens to you, your friends from ASC, and your families. We all want to hear about it!

Our sympathy goes out to Betty Lou and her six children and 13 grandchildren on Bealy's death in March. I had lunch with Betty Lou in May. She says her children have all been attentive, supportive, and wonderful. She showed me the needlepoint banner for our class and I think you will all be proud of it when we parade next year. Start saving your pennies (dollars, alas) to come April 26-28, 1985. The plans for our 50th were being discussed at the April Alumnae Weekend by Nina Parke Hopkins, Betty Lou Smith, Katherine Hertzka, Mary Virginia Allen, Ann Scott Harmon Mauldin, and me . . . Then in November Mary Margaret, Frances, Meriel, and Carrie Phinney were together again for lunch and visiting — two great times for them after so many years . . . Last November Helen Handte Morse and Jack settled into a new house in Menlo Park, Calif., which is easily accessible to two children who live in Napa and Pacific Palisades. A third child lives in Louisville, all of which means that tracks East will be made to Kentucky and also to Sumter, S.C., where Helen maintains her family's former home and to Washington where Jack pursues research for the Department of Defense . . . Dean McKoin Bushong and Millard completed a biography of Gen. Thomas L. Rosser of the Confederate Cavalry. This was published last November. As of Sept. 14, the Bushongs have three grandsons . . . Margaret Cooper Williams enjoyed a brief visit from cousin Naomi Cooper Gale last summer. Naomi was traveling with her young grandson, visiting her son Robert, who lives at Hilton Head, and other kin along the way, affording Travis Gale an opportunity to meet the Southern connection . . . Shirley Christian Ledgerwood and husband John enjoyed a motor trip around Europe during the summer of '83 . . . Margaret Smith Bowie retired in 1975, after teaching in elementary schools for 34 years and is now keeping busy with church activities, bridge and enjoying a great-grand niece, Polly Angela Thompson, a namesake. Polly would like to hear from classmates who may be visiting in Charleston, S.C. . . . Frances James Donohue's son Daniel was married Nov. 26, 1983 . . . Our president, Elizabeth Burson Wilson, enjoyed a six-week visit from daughter Catherine and family from France in December. A grandson was born last July to daughter Glen. Daughter Betsy has two sons and lives in Lawrenceville. Son Mac, Connie, and Derek live in Richmond. Lib is counting on becoming a retiree after next year and is already listing priorities for all her free time! . . . Virginia Williams Goodwin reports the January arrival of their first granddaughter, Lindsay McKeithan Thomason, to daughter Elaine. After five grandsons, this is news!

Dr. Link, professor of history at Princeton, was elected president of both the American Historical Association and the Organization of American Historians . . . Nell Allison Sheldon sent word that Anne Thompson Rose's daughter, Lucy Rose '68, is assistant professor of preaching and worship at Columbia Seminary . . . Exciting news from the May Fellowship Meeting of DeKalb Church Women United was that Nell was one of three women to receive the "Valiant Woman Award," including a handsome pin and certificate . . . Ola Kelley Ausley very kindly sent some pictures for our scrapbook from last year's reunion . . . Margaret Morrison Blumberg, Mary Elizabeth Galloway Blount, Gwendolyn McKee Bays, Jane Turner Smith, Eleanor Whitson Vaughn, and Jean Chalmers Smith are hard at work on their 50th Atlanta Girls' High School reunion plans under the expert leadership of Lulu Croft, chairman of the event set for October 13 . . . An even more exotic reunion is underway for Nell Sheldon and Louise Young Garrett. The fiftieth reunion of their Shanghai American School Class of '34 is planned for early summer at Louise's beach house on the Isle of Palms near Charleston, S.C. Emma McMullen Doom '39 is also on the planning committee. The class included about 50 girls and boys. Many of them have visited China in years since their youth there and have peered over a high wall at the old Shanghai school — no admittance allowed now . . . Frances Castleberry is invited back to Abbeville, S.C., for high school festivities there. Julia Telford was in the same class, so they will be celebrating together . . . Frances Robinson Gabbert was "found" by phone and reprimanded for not coming to our ASC reunion last year — or any reunion ever, in fact. She still lives in Dayton, Tenn., where she enjoys retirement activities and her four grandsons. She lost her husband, Craig ("Gabby"), who was superintendent of city schools, about eight years ago. Frances taught both grammar school and high school classes there. Her children are Craig, Jr., an attorney in Nashville, and daughters Ann and Leona, both of whom live in Dayton. Frances sees Helen Carson '40, when she is in town, and Nancy Thomison Hawkins '43, who lives nearby . . . A last-minute addition to our class news is a really big one — MRS. PASCHALL GOES TO WASHINGTON! Eliza King Paschall had hardly retired from her position in Atlanta with the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission when she accepted a job in the White House on the staff of the president's Office of Public Liaison. Eliza will serve as an intermediary between the president's office and various lobbying groups. The Atlanta Constitution of May 29, 1984, carried across the top of its front page a picture of Eliza and a story headed "Paschall still creates stir — Atlanta rights activist takes White House job." What a climax to Eliza's outstanding career both as volunteer and professional in public service.

they have a wonderful view of Mt. Monadnock. They visited in Atlanta in August. Their daughter presented them with a new granddaughter in February '83 . . . The Clearwater Sun, November 1983, published a picture of Sabine Brumby Korosy and Fred receiving the Neighbors of the Year award at the Community Service Foundation's annual recognition banquet. The award was given for their outstanding community service in establishing the Religious Service Spouse Abuse Center and serving as the first co-chairmen of the RS Spouse Abuse Committee . . . Ida Jane Vaughan Price and Frank, on a trip to France and England, joined Sabine and Fred in London for a visit to Canterbury. The Prices spent Christmas in the frozen north with their son and his wife, both of whom have Ph.D.'s in biology and are at Hamilton College. Daughter Mary and her husband, who also have Ph.D.'s in biology, teach at U of California in Riverside. Audubon Magazine published an article on Mary's work with desert rodents. Ida Jane reports visits with Stuart Arbuckle Osteen, Sara Lee Jackson, and Laura Sale McDonnell . . . Betsy Kendrick Woolford and Bill retired from teaching in Richmond and are teaching in Savannah this year, after which they plan to return to Virginia . . . Tine Gray Truslow and Roy drove up the Eastern seaboard to Canada last fall. Son Rob is working on a master's in social work at Columbia U, and son Will has completed work for a master's in nutrition at UNC-Greensboro . . . Nina Broughton Gaines and Jack made a trip to Greece after Jack's retirement. Nina wrote that the ancient history courses didn't tell her that all of the classical sites are on tops of hills. Their self-esteem rose when they were able to climb more easily than some of the younger people. A sixth grandchild was born in April '83 and lives within "hugging distance." Nina has retired from her library work, and they expect to travel in the States this year . . . Aileen Kasper Borrich retired after 41 years with Southern Bell's comptroller department. She and Fred went to China where they were escorted by a Chinese representative from the American Embassy to Peking, Nanking, Wushi, Soochow, and Shanghai. Stops were made in Japan and Hong Kong . . . Nina Mae Snead DeMontmollin is serving on the Board of Regents of the Museums of New Mexico, the policy-making board for four museums in Santa Fe — Art, Folk, Palace of Governors, and Anthropology, and five State monuments. She also serves on the Board of Children and Youth in addition to being active in politics, painting, and skiing . . . Elaine Stubbs Mitchell reports weddings of two sons last year. Clyde and Susan Groth married in November, and Sam and Caroline Vance married in October. Pattie Patterson Johnson attended both weddings and reported that Sam's was a most unusual al fresco ceremony on the banks of Brasstown Creek, then the guests later watched the moon rise and the sun set over the mountains . . . Rebekah Hogan Henry died in March of 1983. She is survived by a son, who is an officer in the Naval Air Corps, stationed in California . . . I attended the Charlotte Alumnae Club luncheon in February, enjoyed meeting Dr. Rickard Scott. Dr. Scott urged us to stress 100 percent participation of each class in contributing to the financial needs of the College. This is my first year of service as an elder in Unity Presbyterian Church and my third as a member of the Bethel Presbytery Council. I had a great trip to England recently, highlighted by a week on a barge floating on the Thames from Windsor to Oxford and a visit with a friend in Portsmouth with several days on the islands of Guernsey and Jersey . . . Many thanks to all who contributed news. Hope others will be inspired to write!
